

G-Men Kill Two Brady Gangsters And Arrest Third

Trio Faces Machine Gun Fire on Busy Street

ACTIVE IN MIDWEST

Brady and Shaffer Killed at Bangor, Maine

Bangor, Maine — (AP) — Federal sleuths, operating with characteristic precision, today erased with a hail of machine gun fire the notorious Al Brady gang of Indiana outlaws.

Swopt to swift death as the federalists struck suddenly were Brady, leader of the gang, and Clarence Shaffer, Jr., one of his henchmen.

A third member, James Dalhove, threw down his pistol and surrendered after a machine gun bullet flecked his nose. He was quickly lodged in a jail cell.

Only one G-man suffered injury and he, Walter Walsh, was shot in the shoulder. At the Eastern Maine General hospital, surgeons said they believed his wound was not serious.

The show-down between the government and the gangsters came as the latter left a sporting goods store they had visited to purchase pistol cartridges. A federal officer and a member of the Bangor police were in the store and the three gunmen became suspicious and fled.

Brief Battle

As Brady emerged, pistol in hand, they were met by a hail of machine gun slugs directed by G-men concealed in a vacant building across the street. An attempt was made by the gunmen to return the fire, but spectators said the fusillade lasted less than five minutes.

Brady then lay writhing on the pavement, blood gushing from his chest. Shaffer lay beside him, his head and chest riddled. Dalhove fled up an alley and attempted to hide, but he offered no resistance when Inspector Frank Golden of the Bangor police came up and snatched him, shouting about his wrists.

In an automobile the gunmen had parked outside the store, officers found two army machine guns, a can of engine oil and blankets. The car bore Ohio registration plates.

17 U. S. Agents Present

After the coup, the officers said 17 federal officers, headed by Myron Guernsey, had been in the city working on the case during the last four days. They sprang into action today when Inspector Frank McCreary of the Bangor police reported the bandit car was entering the city.

The federal officers, as is their custom, declined to discuss their latest victory over outlaws, but Thomas J. Crowley, chief of the Bangor police, disclosed the Brady gang had been waiting a week for arrival of the two machine guns found in the bandit car. He said it was his opinion a fourth member of the Brady "mob" was in the city, presumably the gangster who brought the machine guns.

Crowley estimated that about 30 shots were fired in the brief but deadly fusillade.

The Brady gang had enjoyed the unsavory prominence of occupying the head of the G-men's "wanted" list since this was written to the career of John Dillinger.

Banks Warned

Since Saturday police and banks had been alert for the "blow off." State police at Augusta previously had notified federal agents in Boston that the Brady gang had purchased automatic pistols and had ordered a machine gun from the sporting goods store. Banks kept out "counter money" sufficient only for current needs.

When Brady and his two companions entered the store G-men were in the establishment, others waited in a vacant building, and still others with police were located on the busy shopping thoroughfare.

"I was behind the counter," said Everett Hurd, store manager, "when they entered. I stepped back and asked Dalhove what he wanted. I did not realize at the time that he was armed and pointing a gun at me."

"Dalhove said, 'have you got that stuff I ordered a few days ago from you?'" Hurd continued.

"A G-man stepped behind him and made Dalhove lift his arms."

Noblest of All Confections

A dear old lady in New Haven, Ct., bakes such delicious pies of no less than 100 different yet equally tempting kinds, that her husband, a county judge enjoys at 74 years, cats and cunnys pie at each meal, including breakfast. More power to him. Facing a high magistrate of such fine discernment, it would be a veritable pleasure to utter the traditional "Good morning, Judge." Note: Good though used kitchen equipment frequently a bargain in the Post-Crescent classified want-ads. This one found fine judgment.

2 Major Bills Are Passed in State Senate

Upper House Approves New Commerce Body, Moratorium Extension

FIGHT IN ASSEMBLY

Attack Resumed Today on Agricultural Authority Measure

Madison — (AP) — The assembly cleared the way today for final legislative approval of the administration's Wisconsin agricultural authority bill, with creation of another state sponsored, non-profit corporation, by ordering the bill to engrossment, 63 to 20.

The vote followed a determined but unsuccessful effort of minority forces to prolong debate on the measure.

Madison — (AP) — While the assembly continued to wrangle today over the administration's Wisconsin agricultural authority bill, with administration leaders pressing for final action, the senate passed two more important measures on Governor LaFollette's 11-point program.

The senate approved and sent to the assembly the bill for a new state department of commerce and an extension of the mortgage moratorium law to 1939. There was no debate and only a few opposition votes.

For the moment the factional battle against "railroading" of the administration program before sine die adjournment, next Saturday, had been transferred from the senate to the house.

Assembly Republicans and Democrats who prevented the administration forces from calling up the agricultural authority bill last night in a session that lasted until 1:45 a. m. resumed their attack today.

They did not object to consideration of the bill but offered numerous amendments.

Episcopal Church Deputies Debate Law on Remarriage

Cincinnati — (AP) — The house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church plunged back into debate today over a proposal to liberalize its law on remarriage.

On one side were churchmen and laymen who urged that no remarriage at all after divorce be permitted; on the other were advocates of repealing nearly all the rules against remarriage.

The argument revolved around a recommendation of a joint commission of the Episcopal General convention which, after a nine-year study, proposed that bishops be authorized to determine whether a communicant should be permitted to remarry for only the innocent party in a divorce for adultery.

A minority report submitted by the Rev. Dr. Howard C. Robbins, a professor at the General Theological seminary, and R. G. S. Seymour of Litchfield, Conn., would broaden the scope of the present law.

Under their recommendation, if a bishop found the cause of divorce was adultery, although the court records showed some other reason, he could grant the innocent party permission to remarry.

Federation Votes For Amendment of Wagner Labor Act

Would Permit Workers to Vote by Crafts in Selecting Agents

Denver — (AP) — The American Federation of Labor convention voted unanimously today to support an amendment to the Wagner labor relations act to permit workers to vote by crafts in selecting collective bargaining agents.

The present law authorizes the national labor relations board to decide in each instance whether elections of bargaining agents shall be by crafts (the form of union organization generally favored by the A. F. of L.), plant units or employer units.

Earlier in the convention, delegates charged repeatedly that the labor board, in exercising the discretion allowed by the present law, favored John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization by ordering elections on industrial lines.

In such elections, they contended, masses of unskilled workers were able to impose their will upon smaller groups of skilled craftsmen.

The A. F. of L. executive council will meet at the close of the federation's convention here, probably tomorrow night or Thursday, but there was little indication it will attempt to yield immediately the power to expel, conferred yesterday by a 26,616 to 1,227 vote of the convention.

"The door is open," William Green, federation president, told the convention before it voted the power he and others of the council had requested.

"The hand of the A. F. of L. is extended. The voice of the A. F. of L. says 'please come back home.' If any one of these (CIO) organizations comes to the door... we'll be there to welcome them and embrace them."

Green simultaneously warned the convention that the council will

U. S. Official Shot to Death By Armenian

Consul General J. T. Marriner Assassin's Victim in Syria

ASSAILANT N A B B E D

Denied Killer Visa to Enter U. S. Because of Insanity in Family

Beirut, Syria — (AP) — James Theodore Marriner, one of the best known American foreign service officers, was shot and killed today by an Armenian to whom he had refused a visa to enter the United States.

The assassin's gun felled the tall, scholarly consul general as he stepped from his automobile before his office for the start of the day's official business.

Marriner's chauffeur captured the assassin. Police, after a preliminary investigation, said the killer's name was Mejdardieh Karayan.

They reported he pumped six bullets from a revolver into Marriner at close range. The consul general was struck in the head, abdomen and thigh. He died instantly.

An investigating magistrate examined Karayan. The prisoner, police announced, admitted that Marriner's refusal to issue a visa for the United States was the motive for the attack.

Insanity in Family

The authorities said the American official had blocked Karayan's entry on the grounds of insanity in the Armenian's family.

Marriner, 45 years old, was known throughout the diplomatic service in Europe as a quiet-spoken, effective agent of his government. He was 6 feet tall and weighed about 185 pounds.

Except for three years in the state department at Washington, 1923-26, when he also handled European affairs, Marriner spent most of his career in Europe.

He was a former counselor of the United States embassy at Paris.

Body of Man Slain In '30 Is Exhumed

Perform Autopsy to Prepare Case Against Alleged Murderer

Menominee, Mich. — (AP) — The body of Alexander Jatkowski, slain with a hammer in his home here April 6, 1930, was exhumed today for an autopsy.

Theodore Schuler, 25, of Abrams, Wis., named in a first degree murder warrant in connection with Jatkowski's death, is being held in the Oconto, Wis. jail on a fugitive warrant, awaiting extradition to Michigan.

Schuler's attorney was to meet Menominee Prosecutor F. Earl Lanthier today to review prosecution evidence. Schuler's attorney said he might advise his client to waive extradition.

Prosecutor Lanthier said exhumation was necessary to determine the cause of death in preparation for presentation of the state's case against Schuler. No autopsy was made when Jatkowski was slain.

Schuler, a cattle buyer, was arrested Oct. 1 at Abrams, Wis., at the time of the murder Schuler, then 18, was employed in Menominee, and the Texas company, one of the defendants in the case.

Special Prosecutor Hammond C. Chaffetz read to the jury the provisions which set the price to the job at the average of high and low quotations for the "spot market" as published in the Chicago Journal of Commerce for the day of sale.

The government claims that the big companies, after adopting uniform contracts of this kind, conspired to raise and peg prices in the spot market—which represented sales at refineries—by concerted buying from small refiners.

Wingrove explained a further provision of the contract, which he said was entered into during June, 1936, whereby his company and the Texas company "split the difference" if the average spot market price for jobbers and the retail price fell a margin of more or less than 5 cents a gallon of gas for the jobber and retailer.

If the margin was 11 cents, he testified, the company cut the price to leave a margin of 34 cents—a 50 percent profit.

The president's speech, to be broadcast nationally at 8:30 p. m. (C. S. T.), will be his tenth "fireside chat" since he entered the White House on March 4, 1933. It will be delivered from the executive mansion shortly before Mr. Roosevelt leaves for Hyde Park, N. Y., on an overnight train.

Belief that the president would discuss the crop situation and a special session of congress was based on the precedent for the radio

Three British Embassy Automobiles Face Fire From Japanese Planes

Chinese Claim Five Japanese Aircraft Shot Down

NANKING ATTACKED

Drop Bombs on South City. Most Important Area

Nanking — (AP) — Five Japanese warplanes were brought down today during spectacular air raids on the Chinese capital and nearby cities, the Chinese announced.

Three of the planes were shot down during dogfights with Chinese aircraft over Nanking. The other two suffered destruction at the hands of enemy pursuit planes at Chinkiang.

Taking part in the raid on Nanking were 24 Japanese aircraft. Two members made an ineffectual attack on Soochow and attempted to attack Chinkiang. Before they reached the city, however, they encountered Chinese planes and were shot down.

The air battle over Nanking was most spectacular.

One of the Japanese planes crashed headlong into the center of the city after a spectacular dogfight with a Chinese pursuit plane.

The Japanese invaders were greeted with a terrific anti-aircraft barrage as they swooped down on the arsenal, dropping the heaviest bombs they have yet used in a raid on Nanking.

Chinese pursuit planes immediately took to the air and engaged the Japanese bombers. At once, three Japanese fighters swooped down from a great height in an attempt to protect the bombers. They engaged in fierce dogfights.

Chinese Plane Struck

One Chinese pursuit ship was struck but managed to make the airfield safely. Other Chinese planes battled with a fast Japanese observation plane that looped, dived and side-slipped in an effort to escape. It was struck in a vital spot, however, and plummeted into the heart of Nanking.

United States Ambassador Nelson Johnson watched the spectacular air duel at close range from the American embassy. The explosions of bombs five miles distant shook the embassy windows.

The Japanese bombers, the largest yet seen here, flew at an altitude of 6,000 feet in perfect formation. They headed over the length of the city and dropped their bombs over the south city, most important area of the capital.

Great columns of dense smoke outside the south city indicated the airfield and arsenal had probably been hit. One Japanese pursuit ship crashed two blocks outside the city.

Contract Read In Federal Case

Government Offers It in Evidence in Trial of Oil Companies

Madison — (AP) — The government offered in evidence in federal court today a copy of an oil company contract of a type the prosecution charges was part of a conspiracy among 23 major firms to raise and fix gasoline prices in 10 states of the middle west.

Walker H. Wingrove, Sheboygan, Wis., identified the contract as one between the independent oil jobbing company in which he is a partner—and the Texas company, one of the defendants in the case.

Special Prosecutor Hammond C. Chaffetz read to the jury the provisions which set the price to the job at the average of high and low quotations for the "spot market" as published in the Chicago Journal of Commerce for the day of sale.

The government claims that the big companies, after adopting uniform contracts of this kind, conspired to raise and peg prices in the spot market—which represented sales at refineries—by concerted buying from small refiners.

New Challenges Of Black's Right To Seat are Seen

Some Observers Think Court Has Left Way Open for Added Action

Washington — (AP) — Some legal experts expressed the opinion today that the supreme court has left the way open for further challenges of Justice Hugo L. Black's eligibility.

The court ruled yesterday that Albert Levitt, former federal judge in the Virgin islands, and Patrick Henry Kelly, Boston attorney, did not have sufficient interest in the outcome to warrant their attacks on the new justice's right to his seat.

This made it possible, in the opinion of some observers, for filing of new contests by litigants who might be directly interested.

Levitt was silent on his specific plans, but asserted he intended to take further action.

Both he and Kelly contended Black was constitutionally ineligible because there was no vacancy on the court and because the justice was a member of the senate which increased the "emoluments" of justices by permitting them to retire at $20,000 a year after becoming 70 and serving 10 years.

Hughes Reads Decision

Chief Justice Hughes read the brief decision.

"It is an established principle," the court held, "that to entitle a private individual to invoke the judicial power to determine the validity of executive or legislative action, he must show that he has sustained or is immediately in danger of sustaining a direct injury as the result of that action."

Black's position secured for the time being at least, spent the remainder of the day listening closely to able lawyers argued before the court. He asked no questions but chatted frequently with Justice Roberts.

Although he participated in none of the actions taken yesterday, when the court agreed to review 72 controversies and refused to pass on 135, Black was expected to join in the decision of cases argued hereafter.

Slaving of Convict Justifiable Homicide

Chicago — (AP) — A coroner's jury decided today the shooting of an escaped convict was justifiable homicide and commended the two detectives for their "heroic action" in capturing the convict and two companions.

Francis B. Moorehead was wounded fatally Friday night by Detectives Frank Keane and John O'Connell when he and two fellow escaped convicts were surrounded in a basement flat. The three escaped early Thursday from the Joliet prison farm.

A recantment of a four-year-old crime yesterday two accomplices, James Pogue, 28, and Samuel Turriano, 22, told officers Moorehead fired the shot that killed Policeman John Scoop, on July 22, 1933. Policeman Elmer Ostling was slain in the same battle.

Pogue was one of Moorehead's two companions in the prison farm escape. Turriano was arrested later. The third convict who escaped was La Carre, 21, with a wrench when he refused him a date.

and has been returned to jail.

Credits CIO for Wage Increases

Hillman Says More Than Million Textile Workers Benefited

Atlantic City, N. J. — (AP) — Sidney Hillman, CIO textile director, told Committee for Industrial Organization leaders today it had been responsible for a 20 per cent increase in the wages of more than 1,000,000 textile workers.

In a report on the Textile Workers' original seven months ago, Hillman announced 456,000 workers had signed pledge cards. 258,150 were under contract with the industry at a 10 per cent increase in pay and $970,000 had been spent in the organization drive.

As private discussion by CIO leaders of their problems entered the second day, John Brophy, CIO director, made public a summary of national labor relations board election results which he said showed "an overwhelming preference on the part of American wage earners for the industrial unionism."

He contended the survey demonstrated its organization had concentrated its efforts almost entirely in the mass-production industries, not with the intention of "raiding" existing craft unions of the American Federation of Labor.

Brophy said the summary showed that out of 374 elections in which CIO participated, it won 291.

John L. Lewis, CIO chairman, heard with eager but amused interest today that the A. F. of L. convention had authorized the ouster of his unions. He reserved comment.

Sentence Man Found Guilty of Shooting

Eau Claire, Wis. — (AP) — Carl Johnson, 35, convicted by a circuit court jury of second degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Joyce Sorenson, 14, was sentenced today to serve not less than 14 nor more than 15 years in state prison at Waupun.

Sentence was passed by Judge James Wickham. Defense attorneys said an appeal would be taken to the supreme court on a motion for a new trial, which was denied by Judge Wickham.

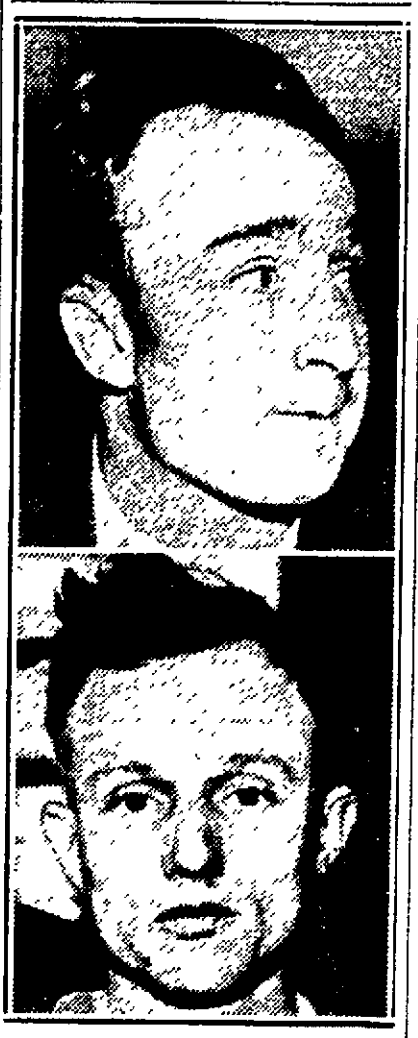

The state charged that a bullet, fired last June 29 by Johnson, passed through a screened porch at the home of his brother, Al Johnson, and struck the Sorenson girl as she roller-skated on the sidewalk.

Missing Appleton Girls Found in Chicago; Will Be Returned to Parents

The Dunford twins, Jean and Jane, and their friend, Margaret Mader, missing from their homes here for over two weeks, were found yesterday afternoon in Chicago and will be restored to their parents tonight.

The three runaways were found by Chicago police living at 7108 S. Halsted street, where they were known as "the McCarthy girls."

Two of the young women were employed as maids in the exclusive Beverly hills residential district and the third had found employment in a restaurant. The Halsted street address was their home after working hours. All three found work in Chicago the day after they arrived in the city.

Chicago police picked up the young women on information from Chief George T. Prim of Appleton that they had been taken to Chicago by A. V. Snider of Appleton who had picked them up just south of Oshkosh. Mr. Snider told Chief Prim that he had let them out on the south side of Chicago and the hunt was concentrated in that section. They were found in a few hours.

Glad to Return

Chief Prim, accompanied by members of the Mader girl's family, left for Chicago early this morning and found the young women here in a detention home. They were glad to return to Appleton and will leave this afternoon.

The twins are the 15-year-old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Dunford, 1423 W. Lawrence street, and their cousin, 14 years old, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mader, 1003 W. Franklin street.

They disappeared shortly after 11 o'clock Friday night, Sept. 24, from the Dunford home where they had made candy for some young boy friends. Mr. and Mrs. Dunford were away from home for several hours and the girls were gone upon their return.

Nothing definite was heard of the girls until the motorist who gave them a ride to Chicago on Sept. 23 reported to Chief Prim. He immediately notified Chicago police.

A concentrated search was made in Appleton and vicinity last week when it was reported that the girls had been seen in two Appleton business places.

British Officials In Moderate Stand On Spanish Issue

Hope to Win Mussolini Support Without Increasing Danger of War

London (4) — Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in joint command of British foreign policy, drafted a moderate but moderate action today to change Premier Mussolini's mind regarding foreign policy in Spain.

Diplomatic sources indicated this course—supported by France—would not increase the danger of a general war but was expected to bring the Italian premier into line on non-intervention.

The change of course was plotted in the face of a gathering insurgent offensive in the peninsula civil war.

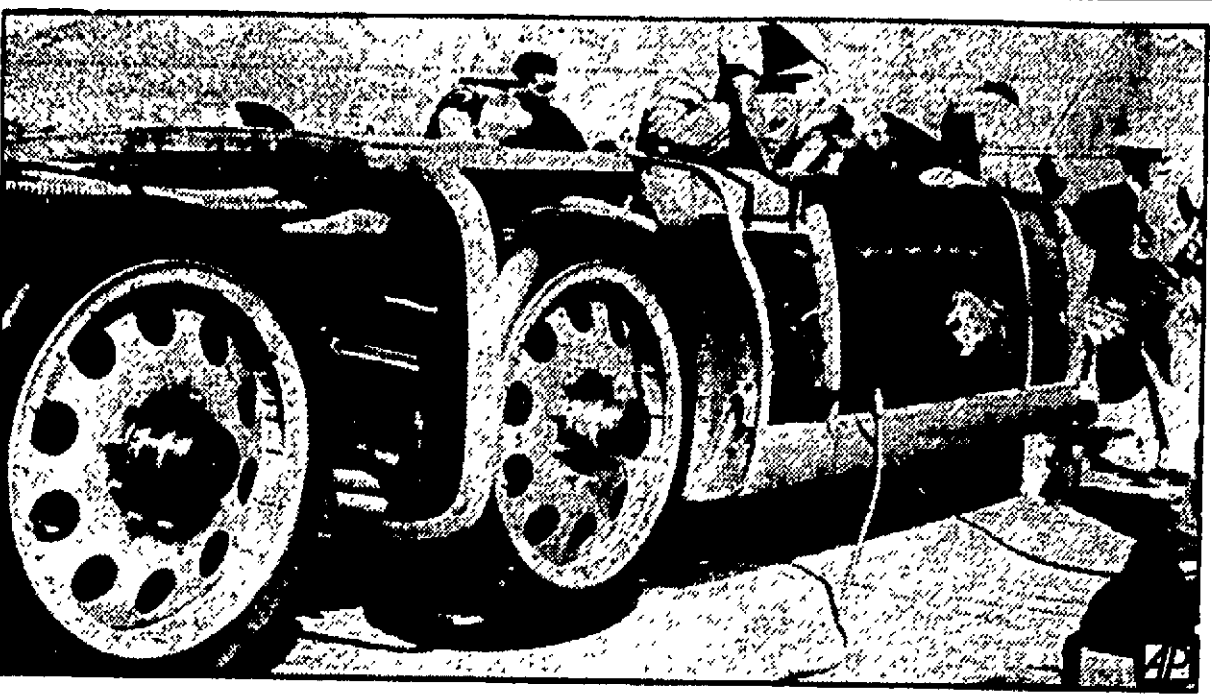

Neither the French nor the British are now inclined to be temperamental or take precipitate action to counter the refusal to talk about withdrawal of his blackshirt troops in a three-power meeting as France and Britain had proposed.

Indications increasingly pointed to the London non-intervention committee—representative of 27 European powers—in an attempt to reach an accord with Italy on Spain.

Italy Hard-Pressed The British and French possibly were trying to take advantage of Italy's more acute economic situation to bring an agreement. One informed source said Italy was being severely drained of men, money and materials by her African operations as well as the admitted intervention on behalf of Spanish insurgents.

Eden hurried to see Chamberlain upon arrival of the royal train that brought the foreign secretary back to London from Balmoral castle with his king and queen. Meanwhile, dispatches from Spain described a terrific shelling of Madrid and strong insurgent assault on other fronts.

The offensive, which followed various reports of new Italian help for insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco, seemed a desperate attempt at a sweeping victory before snows grip the insurgent forces.

Four Legislators Hit Corporation Plan for Farm Aid

Assail Measure Providing For Wisconsin Development Authority

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—Four farmer-legislators from northeastern Wisconsin yesterday voiced their disapproval of the LaFollette administration's novel farm relief bill, a measure which would set up a non-stock, non-profit corporation, called the Wisconsin Development authority, to work for improvement in the quality of Wisconsin agricultural products and the expansion of markets for Wisconsin farm products.

To Senator Pierce R. Morrissey, conservative Democrat who represents Calumet and Winnebago counties, the WAA, as it has been dubbed by its authors, is another example of "LaFollette socialism," and "as a farmer I cannot vote for socialism," he said.

The WAA, according to the first draft of the bill, would conduct technical studies, promote advertising, and assist cooperative or municipal organizations founded for similar purposes. Operations would be financed by an immediate appropriation of $50,000 and $100,000 next year.

Similar to Other Bill Senator Morrissey pointed out that the new device is exactly like another which the Progressive administration succeeded in obtaining legislative approval for earlier this year, the Wisconsin Development authority, which will promote public ownership of electricity.

Neither of these extra-governmental agencies is justified, in any way whatever, in Morrissey's opinion.

To Senator John E. Cashman, insurgent Democrat Progressive, the bill will only create another bureau, which is unnecessary because it will duplicate functions now provided for in the appropriations and powers of the department of agriculture and markets.

"If farmers had a friendly department of agriculture and markets in full operation, we would need no more laws to benefit agriculture. There are now enough laws on the books, whole chapters of them. The trouble is that there is really no department to enforce them," he observed.

Rohan Raps Bill Assemblyman William Rohan, Outagamie farmer, and a Democratic member of the lower house, declared that "it looks like an attempt by some farmers who have failed at farming, to find a way to get paid nicely and to come around to tell us what to do and to watch us work." Rohan is impatient with the whole LaFollette program in the special session, and loses few opportunities to say so.

New 3-Cent Stamp in Recognition of Alaska On Sale Here After Nov. 12

A special 3-cent stamp in recognition of Alaska will go on sale at the Appleton post office as soon after Nov. 12 as distribution can be made, according to a postal bulletin received by Postmaster Stephen Balliet.

One of the territorial commemorative series, the stamp will be first offered for sale at Juneau, Alaska, on Nov. 12 and will be available at other post offices in Alaska on Nov. 13, so far as conditions permit.

The central subject of the stamp is a reproduction of Mt. McKinley in the distance, with views symbolizing present-day developments in Alaska in the foreground. In a narrow panel with dark ground across top of the stamp is the inscription: "United States Postage—Three Cents" in white gothic.

The numeral "3" appears in a square panel with dark ground in each lower corner of the stamp. In a panel at the center of the lower edge of the stamp is the name "Alaska" in white roman.

Stamp collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the stamp on Nov. 12 may send no more than 10 addressed covers to the postmaster at Juneau, with cash or postal money order to cover only the cost of stamps required.

Postage stamps will not be accepted in payment. Mail for Alaska is dispatched from Seattle regularly every Saturday, arriving at Juneau the following Tuesday. To insure careful handling and return by next steamer following the first day of sale, envelopes should reach Seattle in time for mailing on Oct. 30. No air mail service is available between Juneau and Seattle, but covers endorsed "Air Mail" and carrying two or more Alaska commemorative stamps will receive air mail service from Seattle to the office of destination.

Show 2 Sound Motion Pictures at PTA Meet

A joint meeting of the Roosevelt group and the Edison Parent-Teacher association is planned for Nov. 1 in observance of American Educational week. A special program is being arranged and the meeting will be held in the Roosevelt school auditorium.

608 Received Old Age Pensions in County in August

Average Payment Was $19.04, According to Taxpayers Alliance

Approximately one out of every seven persons over 65 years of age in Outagamie county was receiving old age assistance in August, according to the Wisconsin Taxpayers alliance. A total of 608 persons out of 4,480, the number estimated over 65 years of age in the county received aid amounting to $11,578. The average payment per person was $19.04. The per cent receiving aid was 13.6.

In Waupaca county 536 out of an estimated 3,241 received aid during August totaling $9,808. The average payment was $18.30. There were 887 persons in Winnebago county who received aid totaling $16,127. There are approximately 6,386 persons in that county over 65 years of age. The average payment was $18.18.

Outagamie county has 2,353 persons over 65 years of age in Shawano county, 432 were given aid totaling $7,255, an average of $16.79 per person.

541 Persons Aided The average benefit payment for old age in Brown county was $17.81 per person. The total payment to 541 persons out of an estimated 4,296 over 65 years of age was $9,636. In Calumet county $2,011 was paid to 120 persons out of approximately 1,390 over the age limit. The average payment was $15.50.

Approximately one out of every six persons over 65 years of age in the state received old age assistance during August. Of an estimated 216,000 persons over 65, about 36,000 or 16.9 per cent were on the old age assistance rolls during the month. Total costs were $717,400 for the month and payments averaged $19.60 per beneficiary.

Wide variation exists between counties in the percentage of those over 65 actually receiving assistance and the average payment per beneficiary.

As few as 6.4 per cent and as high as 15.5 per cent of the estimated population over 65 were receiving aid in various counties. The lowest percentage occurred in Kewaunee county, the highest percentage in Washburn county, the alliance bulletin stated.

Less Than 10 Per Cent The five counties which were extending assistance to less than 10 per cent of their aged over 65 were: Kewaunee, 6.4 per cent; Green Lake, 6.7 per cent; Washington, 9.1 per cent; Calumet, 9.3 per cent; Ozaukee, 9.6 per cent.

The nine counties paying aid to over 30 per cent of their aged over 65 were: Washburn, 51.5 per cent; Oneida, 48.3 per cent; Burnett, 46.5 per cent; Sawyer, 44.8 per cent; Forest, 39.0 per cent; Florence, 34.9 per cent; Price, 31.6 per cent; Bayfield, 30.7 per cent; Douglas, 30.2 per cent.

"Comparison of Wisconsin's standing with that of other states indicates that the average of 16.9 per cent for this state is not exceptionally high," the alliance pointed out. In June, 1937, according to a report of the social security board, of 39 states granting assistance, Wisconsin had the seventeenth lowest percentage—22 states had a higher percentage, 16 lower—indicating a fairly conservative Wisconsin program of extending assistance. Among the 16 states with lower percentages were six which extend aid only to persons over 70 years old.

"Average payments to old age beneficiaries also vary widely between counties, ranging from a low of $12.06 per beneficiary in Richland county to $25.50 per beneficiary in Milwaukee county. The actual payments are presumably fixed on a basis of need. Reflected also in the payments are the beneficiary's other income and the influence of the availability of public funds."

Madison, Wis. — Without doubt the most comprehensive program ever submitted to any special session of the Wisconsin legislature is that proposed by Governor La Follette last week, a program including 17 bills, many of them containing sweeping changes in state government and state laws affecting industry, agriculture, social security and business.

Moreover, it is to be doubted that any legislature has ever been asked to dispose of a similar program in such a short period of time, exactly one week.

It may be noted here, however, that the administration has already given broad hints that the session will be extended, perhaps for an additional ten day period. In fact, it was only through such suggestions that both houses agreed to accept the program and amend legislative rules to rush procedure.

Wisconsin's beautiful, but physically inadequate state capital has many show-places, but none which holds the visitor as the governor's reception chamber, known to many capital attaches as "the palace room."

Its expensive, richly colored symbolic and historical paintings, gilded ceiling, elaborate woodwork, and teak wood floor keep many sight-seers loitering after the oratorical guide has passed on to other capital interest spots.

In that room almost every noon nowadays, with its large, swinging doors securely locked, are closeted Progressive members of the legislature to listen to pep talks from their political leader, Governor La Follette. During most of this year, the governor relegated that job to his political secretary, astute, politically experienced Thomas N. Duncan. Now he does it himself, and to judge from the sober faces of the governor's visitors as they leave the chamber, they don't spend their time looking at the paintings or admiring the woodwork.

While bitterness was abundantly evident during most of the last few days of the legislative session, a bitterness that was accentuated by the recognition by the conservative bloc of its helplessness in the face of the adroit strategy of the administration, there were also light moments.

Take portly, violently outspoken Senator Harry Boleyn, Port Washington, opposition floorleader, who once last week moved "that we adjourn for one hour to give immature senators an opportunity to suck their thumbs," meaning, of course, the Progressives who attempted desperately to follow out the edicts of the executive office.

Or suave, scholarly Morvin Duet of Fond du Lac, who during the fight over the governor's request for speedy action, observed laconically: "Patience is a virtue. It is said that Mathuselah in ancient times went on a fishing trip that lasted 200 years, and that he sat on one stone for 80 years before he got a bite."

And then there is the case of Assemblyman William Rohan, Kaukauna Democrat who represents the second Outagamie district in the lower house, who often amuses his colleagues with an unconventional manner of address and his out-right opinions on subjects before them.

It seems that (Mr. Rohan won't like this) Rohan obtained a leave of absence and then instead of taking advantage of it immediately, he sat down in his comfortable, high-backed, leather-covered chair and fell asleep. When he woke he found a call of the house had been placed on the assembly, and, like other assemblymen, he was refused permission to leave.

At least that is what Rohan declared. He protested loudly to Acting Speaker Charles Perry.

"I move that all leaves of absence be cancelled," shouted Rohan. "If I can't get my leave no other member should have one."

Perry explained that Rohan could leave if he wished but Rohan refused and pressed the point of his motion. A vote was then taken which was defeated overwhelmingly.

"Now," announced Perry, "the gentleman has voted on the last roll call so his leave is cancelled."

This threw Rohan into another fit of speech-making.

"I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from Outagamie (Rohan) be given a leave of absence and I beg that it be granted," finally burst out Speaker Paul Alfonsi. It was granted.

"I refuse to take the leave now," returned Rohan. "I'm going to sit it out with you right here."

Which he did.

While almost anyone who is asked in the legislature will be ready to tell you that a state-wide coalition convention will be held in the Fox River Valley this fall—many say Oshkosh—few know any more details.

Published reports here during the last few weeks have reiterated the prediction that the Fox River Valley will be chosen for the conference, but neither official leaders of the Republican or Democratic parties, or party members in the legislature are yet ready to give definite confirmation.

It has become apparent that the coalition movement, if it is ever to get beyond the talking stage, must find a leader, and thus far none of the orthodox political leaders in the state have seemed willing to assume the direction of such sentiment as already exists.

BUST THAT COLD WIDE OPEN

Don't Merely Humor It!

Deal with a cold in earnest. Deal with it in seriousness. A cold is too fraught with danger to be taken lightly. Many a case of flu and pneumonia has started with nothing more than a "common cold."

Treat a cold for what it is—an internal infection. Therefore, internal treatment.

Treat a cold with a preparation made for colds and not a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want. They are made expressly for the treatment of colds and not for all kinds of ailments.

They are internal in effect and do four important things.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Bromo Quinine tablets are a proven preparation. They have been on the market over 40 years and are the world's largest-selling cold tablet.

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. Both kinds are sold by all druggists, a few cents a box.

When you feel a cold coming on—don't wait—don't procrastinate—but go right to your druggist and get a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets). Say "No" to substitutes!

Wisconsin Social Security Problem

Public Welfare Committee Outlines
Ways of Financing County Relief Aid

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh of a series of articles on the recommendations and the report of Governor La Follette's committee on public welfare, which spent a year studying the numerous branches of the public welfare problem, and which finally recommended a complete reorganization and modernization of welfare administration in the state.)

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—It is comparatively easy to plot on paper the ideal organization and administration of public welfare services; it is easy to detect faults and to suggest improvements, but at the end there is always that indispensable requisite, cash.

The problem of financing the great, sweeping changes in the state welfare setup envisioned by the committee of 35 chosen by the governor was one on which they spent many hours, and one which in the final report represents a complete chapter.

Given existing uniformity in social and financial conditions in each of Wisconsin's 71 counties, the problem would not have been so formidable. But the governor's group of students found, for instance, that while the relative load of dependency differs in various counties, those counties least able to meet the burden have a proportionately greater burden to meet.

Twice As Many In Need

"In the northern counties," the committee reported, "the percentage of persons in need has been approximately twice the percentage of those in need in the southern counties. On the other hand the per capita assessed valuation of counties in southern Wisconsin in 1934 and 1935 was approximately twice as large as the per capita assessed valuation in the northern counties."

For example, Outagamie county in 1935 had an assessed valuation of more than $25,000 for each person on relief. Brown had about $14,000, Kewaunee and Calumet, $37,000 and $31,000, respectively. But Oconto county had but $4,600 for each person on relief, Shawano county, $9,000, Florence, and several other far northern counties, less than $3,000.

Nevertheless, the committee found it necessary to recommend that all counties be required to share in the cost of social security, and suggest that "counties must prepare themselves definitely to discharge their responsibility in the field of welfare as a continuing function of county government."

Counties Must Participate

"Counties cannot expect that either the state or federal governments will continue to supply funds to carry on welfare functions without substantial financial participation by the counties themselves."

To make certain county participation in the costs and to guarantee maintenance of standards established by the state, the committee urged that state payments be in the form of reimbursement to the counties of a definite proportion of the funds spent by the counties in advance.

A measure of certainty and speed in making welfare funds available for expenditure could be achieved by granting priority rights to taxes levied for social security purposes, the committee suggested. The priority suggested by the committee is that immediately following that accorded the county equalization school tax, which now, in turn, follows the state forestry tax, and taxes levied for such special charges as the county costs of institutional care and principal or interest on money borrowed by any municipality within the county from state trust funds.

The committee, after a study, expressed approval of the present ratio system of federal, state and local monies going into such special aids as old age pensions, aid to dependent children, and pensions for the needy blind, and, as explained in a previous installment in this series, recommended continuation and expansion of those aids.

Mixes Federal Grants

The committee pointed out that the state now mixes federal grants with its own contributions to reimburse counties for 80 per cent of the cost of old age pensions, one third of aid to dependent children, plus all of that received from the federal government, and 80 per cent of the aid to the needy blind.

Through these combined federal, state and local contributions, it is estimated that in 1937 38,000 old age pensioners will receive $9,500,000, 2,050 needy blind will receive $615,000, and 21,000 dependent children will receive $3,328,000.

On the problem of direct relief, which still persists in October, 1937, despite widespread economic recovery, the committee began with this blunt statement:

"The demands of local governments in the form they are now being made cannot indefinitely be met by the state."

The committee's observations were made on the basis of 1936 conditions, but those conditions remain virtually unchanged today.

"Almost all the money made available in 1936 from special state relief taxes has been allotted to 25 counties in the northern portions of the state," the group wrote. "The state has paid 99 per cent of the direct relief burden in some of these counties, and in two counties, the state had to furnish, in addition to direct relief grants, the share required to be paid by the county as a condition of the state securing the special aids under the Federal Social Security act."

Such were the conditions last year. Today, were the committee still at work, the situation would be found to be almost identical. Early this year the legislature appropriated $750,000 in emergency relief for 27 near-bankrupt northern counties. It lasted three months. A few weeks ago legislators were called into emergency session to pass a "fire department" relief measure which will give the bulk of $3,000,000 to those same counties during the next biennium.

Only through the insistence of the Wisconsin County Boards association, and especially southern and western counties who will pay the relief tax bill, was a provision written into the measure to reimburse all counties, irrespective of need, for five per cent of their relief costs.

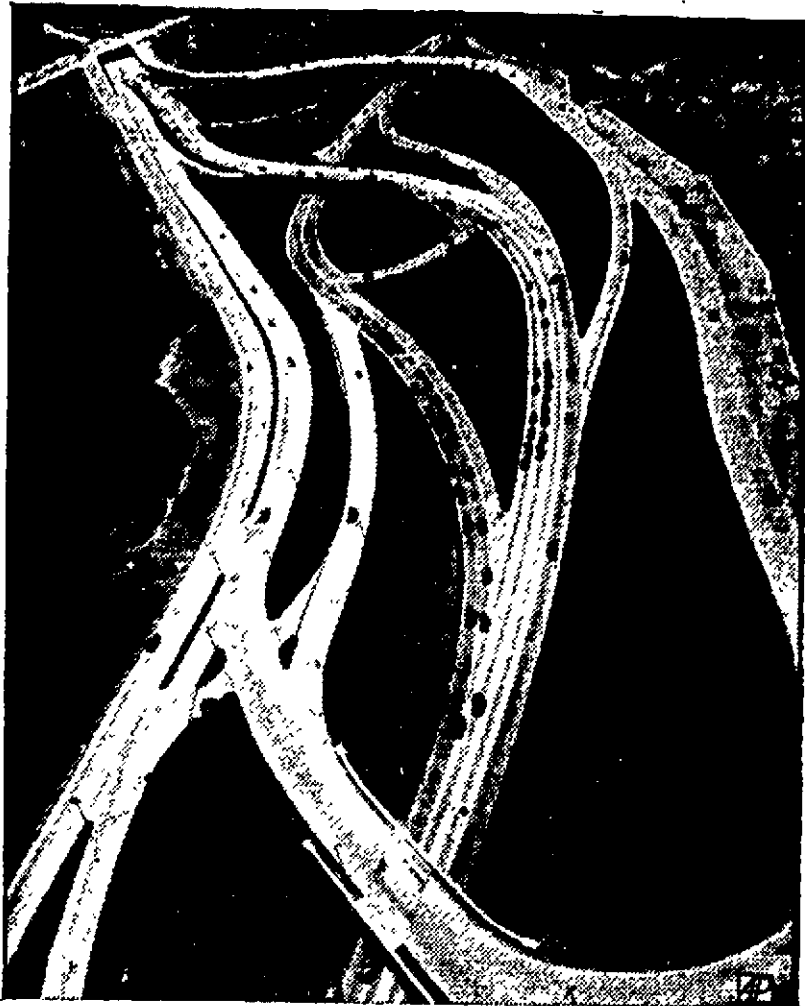

"Other counties of the state which did not receive extensive state assistance borrowed money in order to give needed relief and services to their residents," the committee's report continued. "It is clear that these units of government cannot continue to carry the load by borrowing. Some assistance must be given to counties who have thus far been able to carry the load but may not be able to continue. The present system of relief reimbursements is discriminatory."

Thus, too, argued the legislative representatives of those self-supporting counties while the relief bill was under debate during the special session. But five per cent was the best they could wrangle from the Progressive administration.

The governor's public welfare students held out the hope that at some future date the state will assume a policy of sharing a definite proportion of the cost of public assistance throughout Wisconsin, in addition to special security aids and aids for institutional care.

But despite all that, the committee recognized, from the cold figures in black and white in state and county auditors' books, that some counties are figuratively with their backs to the wall, they are simply unable to carry their load even with state and federal grants.

This problem becomes more important in view of the federal government's requirement as a condition of federal aid for old age, mothers' and blind pensions that every county in the state participate in the program. The committee therefore recommended that, in proven emergencies, the state should loan or grant sufficient funds to tide the county over.

HIGHWAY PRETZELS CUT DEATH TOLL

New York—"Pretzels" have cut down the crossing-crash toll on the maze of highways around New York City. Not real pretzels, of course, but well-timed of crossover roads, like this one on the Long Island parkway system. This is the most complicated of several that have been built near the city in the last few years.

Such systems amount to switches. Cars are routed by signs to lanes that lead to intersecting roads. These lanes pass over or under main highways and take the car out on different roads so that a driver never has to face the hazard of cross-currents of traffic.

They also will name a county auditor.

The city of Appleton's request for $50,000 to pave connecting streets with the county system in the Fourth ward and on which action has been deferred several times again will be before the board for consideration.

The state highway commission's proposal to route Superhighway 41 west of the city through the county asylum farm also will be considered by the board.

The budget for next year will be set and action taken on an equalization report for the purpose of apportioning taxes in the county. Committees will be meeting during the next few weeks preparing their annual reports for the board.

Visiting cards come in two types: formal and informal. The latter is a card to which is attached a flap especially useful in writing notes.

The Sight Light Plus Lamp is a scientific means of producing the quantity and quality of light that is needed on the work area of your desk for easy and comfortable seeing. Like correct posture, good seeing conditions tend toward the elimination of fatigue.

Sight Light Five (as pictured) shields the light source, avoiding the direct glare and provides the highest intensity on the work area from 12 to 18 inches from the lamp where it is required. The overall height of the lamp is 14 1/2 inches and offers little interference with full view of office surroundings.

Only One Way to Remove Black, Lawrence Says

People Could Petition Senators for Resolution to Begin Court Case

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—If the people of the United States want Hugo Black removed from the supreme court of the United States, they can obtain their wish in only one way. It is by petitioning their senators to vote for a resolution directing that court proceedings be begun with a view to establishing whether Mr. Black holds his position today lawfully.

Such proceedings, known as "quo warranto," can be instituted by the senate itself, and, therefore, would not fall under the objection which the supreme court has just expressed against the petition of Albert Levitt on the ground that he was not a sufficiently "interested" party.

Denial of the Levitt petition was fully expected on all sides, and, while the issue may be raised again in other ways by counsel before the court, there is no certain way except by "quo warranto" proceedings to insure a review of the whole matter by the supreme court itself. The reason for such a statement is that the supreme court already has accepted the "quo warranto" method of procedure when an issue was raised as to the right of George Otis Smith to serve as a member of the federal power commission in 1931. In that case, the senate had confirmed Mr. Smith just before the Christmas holidays, and, during that period, the press was filled with charges about Mr. Smith's views on the power question which caused a number of members of the senate to wish to reconsider their confirmation. A technical excuse was used as a means of trying to get Mr. Smith removed from office. It was contended that the senate had not finished the confirmation process when it adjourned.

The supreme court held that the confirmation had been fully completed and refused to dislodge Mr. Smith, but what is important as a precedent is the procedure by which the case went up before the supreme court from the lower courts, even where no constitutional issue was involved.

Law Requirement
The statute requires that "quo warranto" proceedings must be with the consent of the attorney general, but the department of justice was in the same position then of defending the appointee of a Republican president as it would be today if confronted by a request that it consent to "quo warranto" proceedings with reference to an appointment made by a Democratic president. The department of justice consented out of deference to a resolution passed by a majority of the senate, and, because the department did not share the senate's view, it was insisted by the attorney general that the senate provide its own counsel. As a matter of fact, the attorney general actually appeared in the proceedings as fighting against the senate's point of view.

Here is a statement made at the time to the court by Attorney General William D. Mitchell:
"This proceeding could only be maintained in the name of the United States with consent and on the relation of an official of the department of justice. As the officials of the department of justice were already committed by an opinion of the attorney general to a conclusion adverse to the position taken by the senate, consent to the institution of his proceeding was given on condition that the senate would employ its own counsel. This explains why officials of the department appear as amici curiae."

The phrase "amici curiae" is a legal characterization of a party given leave by the court to intervene in a proceeding, as so-called "friends of the court," and it means that the department of justice's lawyers, Solicitor General Thomas Thacher and Erwin N. Griswold, appeared in the case on the side of the appointee, George Otis Smith.

When the lower court refused to dislodge Mr. Smith, the case was promptly carried to the supreme court of the United States, where Justice Brandeis delivered the unanimous opinion of the court, saying in part:

"This petition, in the name of the United States, for a writ of quo warranto was filed in the supreme court of the district of Columbia, on relation of the district attorney, in deference to the desire of the United States senate to have presented for judicial decision the question of whether George Otis Smith holds lawfully the office of member and chairman of the federal power commission.

Deny Petition
The case was heard upon the petition and answer. On Dec. 22, 1931, the trial court entered judgment denying the petition. An appeal was promptly taken to the court of appeals of the district. That court certified a question pursuant to Sec. 239 of the judicial code. This court granted joint motions of the parties to bring up the entire record and to advance the cause.

stating that it was in the public interest to have the matter decided and that a vote for the resolution was not necessarily a vote for or against Mr. Black either on the plan issue or any other question affecting him personally or his qualifications.

There is, of course, no way by which Mr. Black's qualifications can be reviewed by a court because the senate has presumably weighed those qualifications and passed judgment thereon when confirmation was voted. But the senate itself can properly wish to have a constitutional question settled. Members of the senate who thought last August that the constitutional issue was not relevant may justly confess that further study and information makes it desirable to bring a test case.

The constitutional question is whether a member of the senate may lawfully be appointed to a civil office in which the "emoluments" have been increased by an act of congress, passed while he was a member of the senate. Mr.

Black was a member of the senate on March 2, 1937, when congress passed a law increasing the "emoluments" of all supreme court justices by making their retired pay more certain than it ever had been before against possible curtailment by any subsequent congress.

The principle involved and the precedents that will be made in the Black case are far more important than any personal questions, because, if members of congress can increase the emoluments of civil offices under the federal government and get themselves appointed to them, then the article in the constitution which specifically forbids this sort of thing will have been plainly rendered a dead letter. The real issue is: shall the constitution be ignored? Shall the New Deal be permitted to get away with the Black deal? Only the people, by their letters and telegrams to members of the senate, can give answer to those questions.

SALTING JAPAN WITH CYNICISM

What relation or bearing upon the Japanese war has the news item that 3,000 Seminole Indians are about to move from Oklahoma to Mexico? And what has Kluxer Black to do with the conflict?

In a speech described as "fighting" by his constant train of adulaters the President at Chicago drove Kluxer Black off the front page much to the happiness and peace of mind of both the President and his famous, or infamous, Birmingham police court judge.

Cynicism is seldom a pleasant thing but it contains often the harsh truths of reality.

What shall we say about ourselves who have driven the Indians out of their natural habitat, and then what shall we say about the Japs who appear to be motivated by many of the considerations that brought our pioneering forefathers here and turned them loose upon the Indians?

The Seminoles expect to go down into Mexico because they say they can secure better lands upon which to live. We crowded them out because we had a rifle and they merely had an arrow. Yes, it is a long and an old story, and it may be better to permit byones to remain in history's dusty archives, yet men are influenced when they are not wholly directed by the same powers, ambitions and convictions that have affected their course for so many centuries of which we know.

One Japanese diplomat, a frank fellow for the Orient, gave an American correspondent the straight goods. Of course he brushed aside the salaams and other meaningless frummery of the East. He said the war was occasioned because the Have Nots were required to move against the Haves for self-preservation.

Japan has 90 million people crowded on a few islands. China has 400 million scattered over a much more ample domain. The diplomat also mentioned Russia, America and Britain as the Haves who talked very sanctimoniously about truth and honor in order to cleave to what they had.

Perhaps it will be worth our while to inquire into a proper course for Japan if she finds her people crowded into the sea. Shall she restrict births while other races populate the earth? Or shall she just permit her people to starve?

We in America talk constantly about keeping opportunity open for our citizens because we realize that opportunity to a people is like the movement so essential to keep water fresh. What shall we say about opportunity for a nation? Shall we conclude that war is entirely natural when a people feel hemmed in from every side? And if that is a proper conclusion, is not the first step to abolish war the creation of a system whereby nations may reasonably expand without resorting to the sword?

And while Britain and France are cheering our noble President as he talks in war-like spirits, the necessary cynicism should direct his attention to the fact that Britain and France both have very extensive holdings in Asia, great territories they took by force and maintain by force.

It would be a happy piece of fortune if they could secure the intervention of America to hold for them their Asiatic domain while they employ their great fleets in keeping the Mediterranean clear.

And it will be well for the American people to watch their President in this affair very closely. Like Mr. Wilson he is a highly impractical idealist.

And idealists are the gentlemen who go to war, and do a lot of other things equally as senseless, for the purpose of making the world safe for Peru, Lydia Pinkham's Compound, and more wars—and certainly not safe for anything else.

A certain amount of cynicism is necessary in all practical affairs and while the spirit of Woodrow Wilson hovers over the White House it will be necessary to employ more cynicism than ever to offset it.

TENNIS-PLAYING BAKER

It is possible that the humble baker of Neotich, Austria, will become the next burgomaster as a result of the stay of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor at Wasserleoburg Castle. The Duke wanted a tennis companion and apparently could not play with any of his own servants or the detectives assigned to guard him. Tennis is not a common sport in the village of Neotich. The only satisfactory player proved to be the baker.

As tennis-player to the Duke, the baker became a prominent citizen. The best reward the village can give him for his services to the distinguished—and profitable—guest will be to elevate him to the top official position of the community. It makes a nice bit for a folk tale.

A BOYCOTT IS A LIVE WIRE

The church organizations that have demanded an immediate and thoroughgoing boycott of Japan, may be forgiven but the AFL has a statistical department and knows from long experience that a boycott is about the most worthless remedy for anything.

If we entered upon a boycott of Japan, we would hurt the Japs a little, though not critically, and hurt ourselves a great deal more. Our biggest single import from Japan is raw silk, and since the Japanese houses practically control the export of the same materials from China, and there is relatively little exported from India, we would not get much raw silk. Our women folk could do without resplendent hosiery, but what of the thousands of workers at good wages in the silk mills of New Jersey? Surely the government that put them out of work ought to pay them wages.

On the other hand, cotton is the largest single item Japan imports from us. Shall we, to make up for this loss, turn further cotton fields in the south into dairy farms? Just where would the profit be there, not profit financially, but profit in the way of a boycott?

The student will turn to the books, and if he does so he will find that Japan is entirely self-supporting as regards food, coal, sulphur and copper, and that she is nearly self-supporting as to iron. Her really vulnerable spot is oil. But there is a plentiful supply of oil in the Dutch East Indies. Would Holland join the boycott? And if she did, what is to prevent the Japanese navy, against the much weaker navy of Holland, taking over the necessary oil supplies? When Germany became hard-put for oil during the World war, she smashed through Roumania's defences and took what she needed.

A world boycott of Japan would be a serious thing for her, but there is no such thing possible as a world boycott. Japan has her friends among the nations, Germany and Italy in particular, and the only way to prevent her from receiving shipments from her friends would be through another World war, practically complete in every particular.

It may be appropriate here to emphasize again that the threat of a boycott generally causes the shivers, but seldom, if ever, results as anticipated. It is a proposition that cannot be controlled. To undertake it would be akin to the stampings of a child in a tantrum. And that is about all the good it would do.

A boycott is an instrument of war, part and parcel of the dread tragedy. The idea that it might be used separate from war is doubtful. It would probably lead straight to war.

LADDERS FOR FISH

The great Bonneville project on the Columbia river is completed, but there is one feature still in doubt. That is the accommodations for the fish. The "fish ladder" built at a cost of $6,000,000 is the most pretentious piece of what you might call fish architecture ever created. It is meant for the salmon, which make their way up the Columbia river by millions in the spawning season, as their ancestors have done before them, perhaps, for many thousand years.

These fish always seek, for spawning, the little streams where they were born, and refuse to go anywhere else. To interfere with their instinctive practice would mean the ruin of an industry which produces 12,000 tons of salmon a year, not to mention the grief it brought to the living fish. It was necessary to provide some kind of canal locks or other device by which the big fishes could get up the river past the dam and the little fishes could get down.

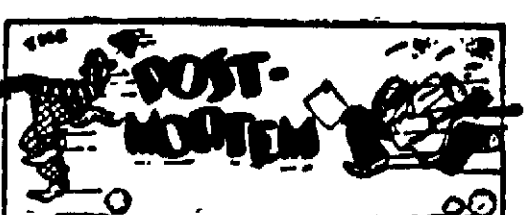

The solution arrived at is a by-pass stream consisting of "gravity ladders," a series of small waterfalls, each two or three feet high, with pools between. The fishes bound upstream leap from pool to pool, and these bound downstream go with the current. That is the theory. But the approaching spawning season will be awaited with unusual interest. "Suppose those salmon are not satisfied with the job? There will be a fish riot below that dam such as mankind never saw before.

Opinions Of Others

MAN'S BEST FRIEND, BARKS AND ALL

There may be some apartment and suburban dwellers who will hail the barkless dogs now being imported from Africa; but a dog which cannot bark somehow chews up all our pet traditions and sentiments. These barkless dogs can emit only a muted growl, but are reputed to be unusually courageous, probably because they are forced to fight where a normal dog might retreat in a cowardly way with vocal bluffing. But who wants a dog that won't or can't bark? The average watchdog, if it came to a showdown with an intruder, would be of little use, and its warning, threatening yelps are usually better protection than iron bars. Imagine a pet dog clanking silently about the house, speechless and unable to welcome his master or his dinner.

Some of us get old and grouchy, 'tis true. If a dog barks at midnight or five o'clock in the morning, we may grumble under our blankets. We perhaps grow apologetic over a canine serenade, or have charitable thoughts because a neighbor's mutt chases our Persian cat. Yet the dignified baying of a hound and the chatter of an amiable fox terrier belong to that varied class of things we loudly deplore yet cling to at heart. We need them to keep life properly seasoned.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

IT would be nice to think so, but it undoubtedly has no connection . . . anyway, last Saturday, the University of Wisconsin football team ran up an impressive score against Chicago . . . this was followed by the trouncing handed to the Chicago Cardinals by the Packers . . . a week before, Wisconsin handled Marquette, and the Packers took the hint and walloped Detroit . . . now if Wisconsin can set a good example against Iowa, and the Packers again follow it, all will be well in the state . . . I refuse to carry the proposition any further today . . .

WE'VE BEEN WAITING FOR THIS

Jonah—

Already wherever us hunters congregate the vocabulary we use don't contain no words that ain't necessary to describe hunting equipment and deer trails.

Personally I been fishing all summer and there was some humorous situations.

There was the day I went fishing with the minister and he hooked the big one. He played him for 10 minutes and finally got his hands on him and then the fish got away. The preacher said, "You talk, I don't." He knewed there was no restrictions on my speech and I was qualified to do the talking.

Then last spring when that feller from Appleton stopped and asked me where and how to catch trout, I told him to go up to the Reservation where Smoky falls is and find a falls with 4 or 5 foot water falling. Them trout was running up stream nights now and if he hung a gunny sack a foot below the falls and close to the water fall all those trout that misjudged the height of the fall or the strength of the current would fall over backwards into his sack.

When he returned he intimated I handled the trout carelessly.

—Ezekiel Sodbuster

AFTERTHOUGHT

Oh, the Giants got the men on base. In the last game that was played. Yes, the Giants got the men on base. And there they stayed and stayed and stayed.

All the Giants really need is four Hubbells and more inspiration for Mel Ott.

Or Joe DiMaggio.

It is a little late to bring up the matter, but the Treasury department announces that there were 41 people in the United States who took in a million dollars or better each in 1935. No doubt there was an increase in 1936 over that figure and 1937 may also show a gain, although we will apparently not know about it until 1939.

No matter how high the percentage rises this year, however, there seems little possibility that your correspondent will be affected. You may have better luck.

Right now, as this is written on another dark morning, and a Monday to boot, I will settle for a bit of sunshine.

THE MILKY WAY

The little stars that form the Milky Way Would be themselves burn with a feeble light, But massed together, evening skies are bright. The pathway to the moon is fringed with day.

One life alone may not reach very far, But many lives lived beautifully shine With radiance that rivals any star, And gives a meaning to the day's design. (Copyright, 1937)

Mrs. W. Z. Stuart was elected president of the Neenah American Legion post auxiliary at a meeting Monday evening.

Paul Hackbert, Jr., entertained a group of high school friends at a dinner party at his home, 405 N. Prospect avenue, Monday evening. The guests were John Ross Frampton, Merlin Pitt, Charles Peerenboom, Jack Schlegel, Horace Davis, Jr., Robert Miller and Robert Neller.

The marriage of Miss Mary Lewandoski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Lewandoski, 802 Milwaukee street, Menasha, and Raymond Rankin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rankin, 132 N. Locust street, took place Monday morning at Menasha. Miss Agnes Lewandoski and Henry Rammer of Appleton were the attendants.

A son was born Monday to Mr. and Mrs. Otto Versteegen, Depot street, Little Chute.

Dorothy Witt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Witt, Dale, and Stanley Peterson, Neenah, were married at Neenah Thursday afternoon.

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, Oct. 15, 1912

Theodore Roosevelt, former president of the United States and now candidate of the Progressive party for that office, was shot by an assassin believed to be insane as he was leaving the Gilpatrick hotel for the auditorium at Milwaukee Monday night. He was painfully if not seriously injured but insisted on delivering his speech before being hurried to Emergency hospital for medical aid. The would-be assassin, John Schrank, said "Any man looking for a third term ought to be shot."

Dr. G. T. Hermer, a new physician in the city, was called to Milwaukee this morning to testify in a case over Greenville returned home today with his race horses after a successful season.

A musical pipe, made of a lion's tooth, was found recently in a cave in Czechoslovakia. The pipe, which still gives forth its two notes, D and G, was played by cavemen who lived in that region 30,000 years ago.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

BETTER NUTRITION IN CHILE

League of Nations Health Committee made a study of nutrition and health conditions in Chile in 1935-36 at the request of the Chilean Government. Some of the recommendations and conclusions made from this study were clearly set forth in an address to the National Council on Nutrition by Eduardo Cruz Coke, M. D., Minister of Health, Chile. (Dr. Coke's address was published in Boletín de la Oficina Sanitaria Panamericana, July, 1937). Incidentally, another indication of progressive spirit in our sister republic of the southern continent, which the United States might well emulate, is the scope of Dr. Coke's department, for he is Minister of Health, Social Security and Welfare of Chile. Quack interests see to it that public health administration is not given the dignity of a department in our federal government but is relegated to the insignificant status of a bureau under the direction of the Treasury Department and some sixteen or eighteen other subsidiary bureaus attached to various departments.

The main health deficiency in Chile is malnutrition. Malnutrition impairs the physical development of infants and children. The Committee's study of health conditions showed that the Chilean people obtain their food principally from wheat and potatoes. Excellent basic foods, both of them, but inadequate to maintain good, not to mention optimal nutrition, health, physical growth and vitality, or vice, as we now call the state of optimal nutrition, unless supplemented with certain other foods.

From Dr. Coke's address I quote this striking statement: "If it is remembered that milk is the principal material for the building of a race, irreplaceable by any other food in nearly all cases, that it is the most important of the protective foods, and that according to our own studies and those of our day, Maternal, paternal or a natural affection is apt to influence some action, or decision very favorably and is likely to be responsible for much of this day's happiness. Your personal affairs require promptness and dispatch, for procrastination is the danger that seems likely to interfere with some of your lines of procedure, relating to a social or business undertaking. Written directions can save both time and trouble, because forgetfulness will be a rather prevailing trait. You may discover the average person's sense of direction is likely to be decidedly faulty, so in asking or directing the way to a specified place, be careful that the information is correct. The prospects for business, as a whole, appear to be bright, with many encouraging signs that there will be plenty of money in circulation. Married and engaged couples, and those hoping to see their matrimonial dreams come true, must avoid any kind of grumbling this day, if quarrels are to be avoided.

If a woman and October 13 is your birthday, you should have a fine sense of justice and a gift for making excellent decisions. Being discriminating, you may win a reputation for being aristocratic. You are probably very broad-minded, free of prejudices, and methodical in your work. You must be inclined to count your pennies, for thriftiness is apt to be almost an obsession. You ought to be very fond of good food, especially sweetmeats. Your social graces may cause you to be very popular and a leader in your set. Among the activities which should assure you a bright future are teaching, radio work, lecturing, writing, stenography, accounting and selling. You ought to possess every qualification required to make your married life a complete success.

The child born on October 13, frequently is blessed with a remarkable memory. By nature it should be studious. The chances are in its late teens this youngster will embark upon a career that will assure it an outstanding position in society.

If a man and October 13 is your natal day, you may not do things in a spectacular way, but the chances are you do them very thoroughly. The indications are that you can become a great success through hard work. Law, politics, theology, acting, real estate, insurance, journalism and salesmanship appear to be among the activities that have many opportunities to offer a man of your versatility.

Your Birthday

"LIBRA"

If October 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:45 a. m. to 12:45 p. m., from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m., and from 7:45 to 9:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m., from 5:45 p. m. to 7:45 p. m., and from 9:45 to 11:45 p. m.

Love perhaps will be a very important factor in your affairs this day. Maternal, paternal or a natural affection is apt to influence some action, or decision very favorably and is likely to be responsible for much of this day's happiness. Your personal affairs require promptness and dispatch, for procrastination is the danger that seems likely to interfere with some of your lines of procedure, relating to a social or business undertaking. QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Not Flashes

I and many of my friends are passing thru the menopause. Only trouble we have is unpleasant hot flashes. Will these ever stop? Will any remedy relieve them now? (Mrs. M. L.)

Answer—Many women never have them. They continue to trouble more or less for three or four years, on the average. Semi-weekly or weekly hypodermic injections

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington, D. C., October 12.—Yesterday we went over to see if and when the post office department would stop the circulation of smutty publications.

Suppressing smut is one duty that post office officials attack with a sort of spiritual fervor, as a rule. They would go into it head over heels if they had the money. But they don't have enough really to bring the fifth publishers to task. So suppressing smut becomes a sort of sporadic business.

Recently, we learned, there has been a lull in the drive to keep the mails clean of obscene matter, not because of any change of policy but for more casual reasons. First, the inspection service has been temporarily concentrated on other duties and, second, there was a slight abatement of violations.

Long ago many magazines publishing morbid, sexy stories got around the post office department's strict regulations against obscenity by shipping their publications in bulk by freight or express.

Postal regulations impose a $5,000 fine and five years imprisonment upon persons sending obscene matter through the mail.

There is punishment also for sending such stuff by freight or express in interstate commerce, but the percentage of detections is not so great as in the postal department.

There's Money In It

There are several types of obscene publications which depend upon use of the mails to exist. First are certain kinds of correspondence clubs. Members of a given "club" exchange letters telling of cluttered up mental rovin'g, sometimes illustrated with drawings or photographs which would simply curl your moral fure.

Others share by mail several varieties of Freudian experiences. In another class are commercial distributors of obscene photographs, books, pseudo-medical treatises and the like. These often are hooked in with the correspondence clubs. In them lies the profit, which is big. The postoffice department says there has been a "tremendous" increase in recent years in this class of stuff.

Detecting the dirty stuff is difficult but quite possible when the postal inspection service has sufficient manpower to turn its attention to it. Getting convictions is another trick. Under the present law the senders, which for the most part are eastern publishing houses, can be prosecuted only at the place where they put it in the mail.

Conviction Spurs Drive

For a long time the department has appealed vainly to congress for an amendment to the law permitting the cases to be prosecuted at the point where the filth is delivered. Often enough the publications will fall in the hands of individuals in Kansas, Texas, or elsewhere, who are only too glad to help get the case to court.

When witnesses are faced with the necessity of traveling from Kansas to New York, for instance, they often balk; and the expense to the department is terrific. Moreover, the department in years past has not had especially good luck in getting convictions in New York. New York juries are fairly liberal minded. It seems, and don't get me wrong, that the department especially excited at the complaint of an Iowa mother indignant at having a book of naughty pictures delivered to her 14-year-old son.

However, a jury in Judge Moscovitz' court in New York smoked down on a case recently. The judge praised the jury highly, and the post office department felt better.

Nevertheless, the principal publishers and distributors of dirty literature were not scared out, only a few of the smaller fry. The department expects the smaller ones will set up under other names in time. Usually they do.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York.—The recent allegation of critic-baiting, hurled at Gilbert Miller by a London writer (neither successfully dodged it), recalls the time George Arliss appeared in Poldeklin, the Booth Tarkington piece, and the hilarious aftermath of the unfriendly criticisms which gave Arliss a pain and severed a beautiful friendship.

Arliss at the time was under the direction of George C. Tyler, who took his production activities seriously, and when the reviewers got through panning the play there wasn't much left. Tyler was furious. He summoned his ad-writers and next day this satirical advertisement appeared in the papers:

"The notoriously bad actor, George Arliss, is presented in a new play on the hackneyed theme of Americanism, Poldeklin, by the well known hack writer, Booth Tarkington. Direction George C. Tyler."

This action, it is said, pained Arliss very much and he never appeared under Tyler's management again.

Another who never hesitated to give the critics a piece of his mind was Ethel Barrymore. During an interview once, when questioned whether one of her children would follow in her footsteps, she threw back her head. "Certainly," she cried, "my family has always been on the stage and I consider my profession the highest, just as I consider yours the lowest."

This "quote" was published on Broadway and in papers up and down the land. As to be expected, a hue and cry arose, with the actress' producers vainly trying to have the critic "muzzled." Broadway writers gave it a play for months.

Miss Barrymore, as you recall, gave out an important statement several months ago, announcing that she had decided to retire. She was, she said, definitely through with the theater and would devote her time to helping youngsters get a start. The news services carried interviews and the news-reel cameramen shot reams of film on this last "farewell" of a great actress.

However, Miss Barrymore, as is her privilege, has changed her mind and is now rehearsing in a new play.

Edward Arnold has an unusual offer from a Texas farmer. The good earth man scolded Arnold for making so much money, condemning him and other Hollywoodians as wastrels, and no-goods. He concluded with this offer: Arnold could benefit his soul by advancing $15,000 needed for new equipment on the old homestead. In return, farmer would give a mortgage. Can you guess how Arnold replied?

The Fiji Islands number more than 200.

Concert by Melton to Open Series

JAMES MELTON, brilliant young tenor, star of concert, radio and screen, who will open the Community Artist series at Memorial chapel Wednesday night, Nov. 10, not only delights his audiences with his voice but impresses them with the charm of his personality.

The handsome singer has a smile and a personal magnetism that caused one critic to write: "Mr. Melton's beaming charm would have made him a hit, even if he had sung less well."

It is this combination of voice and personality which has lifted the young American tenor to his present prominence. First radio, then the concert stage, and last summer Hollywood beckoned the smiling young man. His first picture, "Stars Over Broadway," was a country-side hit. During his recent engagement for personal appearances in connection with screen productions in Chicago, Detroit, Buffalo, Philadelphia, and Washington, he broke box-office records.

Second feature on the Community Artist series will be Harold Bauer, distinguished pianist, who will appear on Friday, Dec. 3, Stephan Hero, brilliant young violinist, will play at the chapel on Monday, Jan. 10, and on Wednesday, Feb. 16, the Lawrence A. Cappella choir, directed by Dean Carl J. Waterman, will present a concert.

Rose Bampton, American contralto, will close the 1937-38 series with her appearance on Thursday, March 24. Tickets for the concerts are now on sale.

FORECAST for an Aerogene Wave:

COOL and FAIR HEAD HAIR

Now a permanent may be just a pleasant interlude in our capable hands: No more heavy metal weights, no more hot heaters, no more high temperatures, no smelly chemicals of any kind to steam your curls!

Aerogene, a seeming miracle, is just this simple: A mite of current, no more than it takes to run a child's toy train, flows right through the light little Aerogene Sachets, stopping automatically when the inside moisture is absorbed. Your hair cannot possibly be over-dried, nor your scalp overheated.

It is actually beneficial to hair: the wave comes out softer and stays in longer than by any other method. Phone for a "sitting" ... an Aerogene is as comfortable as sitting for your portrait!

How to Make Better Cough Remedy Than You Can Buy

A Big Saving, and It's So Easy! No Cooking!
Cough medicines usually contain a large quantity of sugar syrup—a good ingredient, but one which you can easily make at home. Take 2 cups of granulated sugar and 1 cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking! No trouble at all.

Then get from your druggist 212 ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of truly wonderful medicine for coughs due to colds. It is far better than anything you could buy ready-made, and you get four times as much for your money. It lasts a long time, never spoils, and children love it.

This is positively the most effective, quick-acting cough remedy that money could buy. Instantly, you feel it penetrating the air passages. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the inflamed membranes and makes breathing easy. You've never seen its equal for prompt and pleasing results.

Pinex is a concentrated compound of Norway Pine, the most reliable soothing agent for throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood — Those who won't be happy until they decide who's best in "Stage Door" meaning K. Hepburn or G. Rogers — had better stay away. Likewise, those who insist on literal screen translations of stage hits. But they'll be the losers in entertainment if they do stay away. The new Gregory LaCava-directed film belones on even the most conservative of "must" lists.

Humorous, dramatic, tragic, satirical, "Stage Door" is a large slice of theatrical boarding house life. Girls from everywhere register there and pursue their nearly hopeless job of crashing the theater. It is futile but inevitable, this life, as long as stage-struck girls continue to grow up and come to the city.

College Girl Shines
"Stage Door" takes up, specifically, the story of Terry Randall (Miss Hepburn), who is unlike the other victims of footlights fever in that she is wealthy. Her father, to "cure" her, sends a play on condition that she be started. Innocent of the plot, Terry is rehearsing woodenly and terribly, and Tony Powell (Adolph Menjou) as the producer is in despair. Opening night Kay Hamilton (Andrea Leeds), a little actress who might have had the part but for Terry Randall, commits suicide. Jean Maitland (Miss Rogers), a tough little chameleon feuding with Terry, brings the news before the opening curtain. Shocked and torn emotionally, Terry goes on for a great performance. And life goes on at the boarding house, the girls wisecracking to hide their economic fears, elating over one-line parts, hoping against hope.

Both Hepburn and Rogers are splendid, the former recapturing the mood of her "Morning Glory," the latter establishing her right to be considered seriously as a dramatic actress. Surprise sensation in the cast is Andrea Leeds, until recently a college girl with minor film work behind her. As the artistic, sensitive Kay, the girl delivers a performance, beauty and personality that stamp her indubitably as a star material.

Take It or Leave It
"Music for Madame" is another pleasant outgrowth of the association of Jesse Lasky, producer, and Nino Martini, singing star. The story brings Martini to Hollywood seeking fame as a singer, with Joan Fontaine cast as an extra girl striving for recognition as a composer. There's a jewel robbery, which leads to romantic complications for Nino and Joan, but the happy ending is on tap.

Joan, in her first big lead, again indicates that sister Olivia de Havilland may have trouble keeping first movie honors to herself in the family.

"This Way Please" belongs in the take-it-or-leave-it department. It isn't very good but it isn't very bad. It has Buddy Rogers playing an orchestra leader in a movie house, with Betty Grable very nice as the usherette who falls in love with him. Also present and contributing are Mary Livingstone (Mrs. Jack Penny), Ned Sparks, Jim and Marian Jordan (Fibber McGee and Molly), and, most effectively, Rufe Davis.

Social justice department: On a sweltering day, Olivia de Havilland, Claude Rains, and a large crew perspired on a hot-stage under the extra-hot lights needed for technicolor. Across the way, in a huge air-cooled stage, two actors, director, and a small crew worked on intimate scenes. The air-cooled actors were Colbert and Boyer, both guest artists at Warner's.

Culbertson Continues National Bridge Exam

Mr. Culbertson is conducting, through this column, a national examination of bridge players. Rate yourself by subtracting from 100 the points for each wrong answer.

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Questions 7 and 8 in the National Self-Rating Bridge Examination appeared yesterday. They were:

Question 7. Both sides vulnerable. You are South, North, your partner, dealt and bid two no trump. East passed. Your holding is:

♠ Q 4 2 ♥ A J 6 ♦ K 7 3 ♣ 7 5 4 3.

What call do you make?

Answer. You should give a double raise. Bid four no trump. You would raise to three if you held only one king. The other honors you hold amply justify a slam-try. (Two points) demerit for any bid other than four no trump, except five no trump, for which there is only one point demerit.)

Question 8. Both sides vulnerable. You are South, the dealer. Your hand is:

♠ A Q 10 5 ♥ A J 4 3 2 ♦ 2 ♣ 10 6 4.

Answer. You should open the bidding with one spade. If you open with one heart (the only alternative) you will be embarrassed for a rebid if partner responds with either one no trump or two diamonds. By first bidding one spade, you reserve the comfortable rebid of two hearts. (One point demerit for bidding one heart; 2 points demerit for any other call.)

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

Question 9. Your opponents are vulnerable; you are not. You deal and pick up this hand:

♠ 2 ♥ None ♦ K Q 10 9 8 6 5 3 ♣ Q J 9 7.

What call do you make?

Question 10. You are vulnerable; opponents are not. You are South. West deals and the bidding proceeds as follows:

West North East South
1 spade Double 3 spades ?

Your holding is:

♠ 6 5 4 2 ♥ 9 7 6 5 3 ♦ K 4 3 ♣ 7.

What call do you make?

TODAY'S HAND

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH
♠ 7 5 3 2
♥ A 6
♦ Q 7 6 2
♣ 10 8 4

WEST
♠ 5 3 2
♥ K J 9 8
♦ 10 8
♣ 9 6 3 2

SOUTH
♠ A K 6
♥ Q 10 4
♦ A K J 6
♣ A Q J

The bidding:

South West North East
2 no trump Pass 3 no trump Pass

West opened the eight of hearts, and the defenders collected four heart tricks before the declarer could draw his breath. On the third round East signaled with the ten of spades, completing the echo on the fourth trick. Declarer also let go a spade. West shifted to his top spade. Declarer won, and cashed the ace and king of diamonds, noting with pleasure that both opponents followed suit. The diamond jack then was overtaken with the queen, and a club was led and finessed. Now the six of diamonds to dummy's seven provided an en-

ADVENTURES IN TIBET

II—FAILURE AND SUCCESS

Soon after obtaining drinking water from the pool in the desert river bed, Sven Hedin and his companion met some shepherds, and were guided to a town where they gained back their health.

There was a Buddhist monastery with 108 beads. He also carried a small image of the Buddha in a metal case. A native of Tibet served as a guide, and a Russian Cossack also went along. All three were mounted and they rode toward Lhasa.

Before long, the three men were halted by Tibetan soldiers. Questions were asked, and it was learned that they were strangers.

"We want to go to Lhasa," said Hedin.

"You cannot visit our holy city," replied the leader of the soldiers. "We shall escort you out of the country."

After being taken to the border, Hedin made his way back to Sweden, but four years later he returned to Tibet. The strange country had a charm for him.

Once more, Hedin crossed desert highlands. For more than two months, his party did not meet a single human being. Some of the sheep taken with the caravan were frozen to death. The strange animals known as "yaks" were seen from time to time. One day a bull yak made a charge upon Hedin, but he escaped.

At last the party reached Shigatse, a city almost as holy as Lhasa. The Swedish explorer was treated well, and was allowed to watch a New Year's festival. White-robed priests danced a "devil-dance" to the music of trumpets 10 feet long.

Hedin stayed in Shigatse for almost seven weeks. Then he went away, happy to have learned a great deal about the religion of the Tibetans.

One day a bull yak made a charge upon Hedin.

In later years, Hedin spent a great deal more time making other journeys across unknown parts of Tibet. One day his caravan was struck by a sand storm. The loads were taken from the backs of the camels, and the beasts laid themselves flat on the ground, with their heads and necks stretched out. The men gazed themselves as well as they could with tent cloth, boxes of food, and coats. All day and all night, the storm lasted, then came to an end.

The men and the animals suffered during the sand storm, but all lived through it.

In the summer of 1901, Hedin tried to reach the holy city called Lhasa. White men were not allowed to go there, but he thought he would try anyway.

Hedin put on a Mongolian coat of red color, and around his neck

Normal for Children to Display Selfish Trait

BY ANGELO PATRI

Selfish children are normal children. Unselfishness is not born in a child ready for immediate use. The first instinct of a child is self-preservation. The world centers about himself. Things are good or bad as they affect him. He sees nobody else's needs; has no knowledge of anybody else's rights. He is an individualist in all purity.

This is not to be considered a fault. It is to be taken for granted as one accepts his other aspects of infancy. One sets him an example; gives him experiences of thought for others; but not until he begins to show understanding of other children's wants and needs is he to be directly taught to stand aside for others. Not because it would not be good for him to understand sooner, but because he is not ready for such teaching. His stage of growth cannot be used as the basis of such experiences.

When a well-intentioned mentor takes the candy from one three-year-old and hands it to another saying, "You must share with your sister, dear," the despoiled one sees only the injustice of the might that takes his treasure. And he rebels with all the strength of his lungs, and his nature. That rebellion is not a good preparation for effective teaching in altruism. It is likely to leave its marks on the thinking of the child for years to come and make him anything but altruistic. He is remembering his wrongs and is determined to right them. He will hold fast to what is his and take, by might, what he can belonging to others because that was his experience.

When children are too young to feel generous and unselfish on their own it is better to give each his allotment of whatever goodies or treats is to befall him. Avoid forcing generosity. Talk about it, practice it, but be careful not to make a child give up what he wants to hold. Unselfishness must come willingly to be real.

Making a child give a set part of his allowance to church, Sunday School, Foreign Missions, is not the way to teach him to support these institutions. Tell him the story of the need and leave the giving to his own discretion. If he does not give, refrain from scolding him. Keep on showing the need, and setting the example until he gets the idea. All healthy children, in time, will come to the place of understanding other person's needs and will want to come and make him anything but altruistic. He is remembering his wrongs and is determined to right them. He will hold fast to what is his and take, by might, what he can belonging to others because that was his experience.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

THE RULE OF COMMON SENSE

Dear Mrs. Post: I work in a town some fifty miles from home, and go home every other week-end or so. I want to see my family of course, but another principal reason is to see my fiancée whose work does not make it possible for him to come to see me very often. Mother thinks, in view of this, he should sometimes pay my carfare, but my brother says mother is wrong, and you'd express your opinion about this.

Answer: Your brother is right, a hundred per cent.

Dear Mrs. Post: So often I go to parties at which there is only a salad served with crackers and coffee, and notice that both the fork for salad and the spoon for the coffee are placed at the right. Shouldn't the fork be on the left where it is always put?

Answer: The place for the fork is at the left, and the coffee spoon belongs on the saucer—always.

Dear Mrs. Post: Is there anything incorrect about having a wedding ring set with diamonds? I have no engagement ring and my fiancée suggested getting me a jeweled wedding band. My sister tells me she heard that you wrote sometime ago that you did not like such a ring. If you did write this, I wish you would tell me why.

Answer: I have never written that a circle of diamonds was not a lovely wedding ring. I have said, when asked, that a diamond wedding ring is not very practical because the setting does not wear longer than fifteen years or so. If the ring is never taken off. During many years my own has had to be reset twice and lost stones replaced several times. Every one else I know who has had the same experience and if you are sentimental about never taking off the ring—then the diamond one is impossible. Otherwise, I think you should have the diamond band if you prefer it, by all means. I merely think it fair to tell you that a plain, very narrow band of white or yellow gold wedding ring and a diamond band to wear on top of it as a guard is more practical.

Dear Mrs. Post: Can you tell me where the idea ever started in America that it is incorrect to eat salad with a knife? You don't hold this opinion, do you?

Answer: I have never known where the prejudice started nor where it still exists, but it seems likely that the absence of silver salad knives naturally made the use of steel that was not stainless impossible. The moment it came in contact with vinegar, it turned everything it touched black, and salad therefore looked as though smeared with ink. Obviously, therefore the use of a knife for salad, was banned. In houses of complete equipment, silver-bladed

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. L. FARRINGTON

When garden makers order their tulips this year, they will be wise to choose some of the newer and unique varieties. Fantasy in particular. Most of the parrot tulips have weak stems and are not very desirable. Fantasy is different. It makes a large flower on a stout stem and is filled in a most unusual way. Fantasy is another unique tulip, dazzling crimson in color but with edges which look as though they had been cut with the shears. It keeps its color without fading and is excellent for cutting.

Charm, Poise Necessary to "Grand Lady"

BY ELSIE PIERCE

In every one of her little foibles, Fashion commands us to look "the woman of the world." The upswep hair-do's, the sumptuous brocades, the sweeping trains, the new low décolleté in evening wear—they are fine for the woman of thirty and forty . . . and very flattering indeed.

To wear the fashions well, you not only have to look the part of "the grand lady" but in addition a more than usual amount of poise and charm that come with years of experience.

Look Your Age

If you are thirty or forty, or fifty for that matter, you can look your age beautifully and gracefully, because you've Fashion on your side. There's nothing flashier about the styles that command this season's spotlight . . . nothing kitchy or too-too-youngish.

You can be frankly forty or fifty. You don't have to go to extremes to give the lie to the calendar. But remember this: the woman of forty and fifty today is "the woman of the world," beautifully preserved, impeccably groomed, vitally interested in many things. She has hobbies which command a lot of her time. She has her social engagements. She doesn't deny that she spends hours keeping up appearances. The world expects her to do just that.

Times have changed. Beauty standards have changed. You're not supposed to or expected to look ten years younger than you are. A woman of thirty is expected to look like a woman of thirty today. Which is about ten years younger than the woman of thirty looked twenty years ago.

The woman of today follows a regular routine; she studies herself and her beauty needs and goes about this beauty business scientifically. There's less emphasis on looking extremely, inconsistently young; but more effort on looking one's age beautifully. Her regal carriage, her perfect poise, her mellow charm, her worldly experience—these characterize the "woman of the world" today.

My bulletin "Signs of Age" may be had for a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Early Marriages May Result in Tragedies

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am 20 years old. Married at 17. Have a little girl 2 years old. My husband is as good a man as any one could find. Has no bad habits. Is kind and affectionate and devoted to me. Very thrifty and provides generously for me. But I am dissatisfied and don't know what to do. Don't even know whether I love my husband or not. Think I don't because I get no thrill from being with him or from his caresses. I want to go places and have good times and stay young. He wants to stay at home. I have a high-school education and could easily get a college education if it were not for him. I want to go in training for a nurse. Could leave my little daughter with my mother. At the time I was married I saw marriage as a free life, a way to escape the close rules my family had raised me by and a way to get out of this small town, which I always hated. If I leave my husband and become a trained nurse and go my own way, will my child have as good a chance in life as if I stayed with my husband who can provide amply for us? There is no other man in the case. Perhaps I have never known love, only childish fancy. Perhaps I love my husband and don't know it. Who knows? And how am I to choose the right path?

Answer:

Yours, poor little pathetic wife, is just another of the millions of tragedies that are the result of too early marriages. You married before you knew what you were going to be yourself, or what you wanted in a husband, and before you had any playtime. Now you are restless and dissatisfied because you are wanting all the things that you have missed and out of which you cheated yourself.

You want to be free, to play and dance and go places and have the pleasures that belong by rights to your time of life. But you can't have them because you are tied down with a husband and baby and house and responsibilities of a married woman. You don't know whether you love your husband or not because you can't compare what you feel for him with the fancies that you might have had for Tom, Dick and Harry, nor his attractions with theirs. Even your baby is a burden to you because you weren't old enough for motherhood, nor ready for it, so that it would have made taking care of a little child the most interesting and exciting thing in the world.

But it is too late to think of all that now and to shed any tears over the spilt milk of your lost girlhood. Of your own will you married, and now you must make the best of it and try not to make your

Cover ground over tulips with a mulch three or four inches deep made of leaves and light manure. If this is done as soon as the surface of the earth is frozen bulbs will not freeze during the winter.

Oxalic acid (poison) if used to remove iron rust on linens, must be neutralized to prevent making holes in the material. It may be neutralized by mixing with a weak solution of ammonia water. Ammonia will remove iodine stains.

Lilac bushes may be planted late in November. Lilacs start to grow early in the season, so Fall planting is better than Spring. Dig well-rotted manure into soil around the bushes if you wish a profusion of bloom next year.

Those who make fagoting trimmer now so much in vogue will find it much easier to do the work on buckram than on paper.

HOME-MADE 'RAKE'

A long-handled fork is most convenient to use for "raking" foods from the hot coals of the camp fire. Fasten a long-handled kitchen fork to a yard stick, broom handle or straight stout stick.

FOR OUTDOOR COOKING

Charcoal stoves are handy to use in outdoor cooking. Folding stoves, which are easy to carry, may be purchased. Only a few cents' worth of charcoal will be needed.

Knives have always been used. With the invention of stainless steel, all reason for the tabu of the salad knife is gone.

Blame Failure to Protect Crossing For Death of Girl

Driver of Car in Fatal Crash Also Partially at Fault, Jury Decides

Improper marking and lack of signal lights or wig-wag at the Soo Line railroad crossing on Highway 125 west of Appleton was a contributing cause of the accident in which Miss Gertrude Knudson, 24, 314 E. Washington street, met her death when the auto in which she was riding and a freight train collided last Friday night, a coroner's jury found at an inquest held at the Menasha city hall this morning.

The jury's verdict stated that officials of the railroad were negligent in not providing proper and suitable warning signals and also that Nyles Manley, 817 W. Harris street, driver and owner of the death car, was partially negligent in not having the car in perfect control.

Miss Knudson was killed when the impact of the auto with the train engine threw her out of the car, against and under the train, the jury found.

No Action Planned
No criminal action will be taken, Dr. G. A. Steele, Winnebago county coroner who called the inquest, said this morning.

Manley, 24, testified that he was going west on Highway 125 about 35 or 40 miles per hour and did not see the southbound train until he was about 125 feet from the crossing.

He applied the brakes, he told the jury, and skidded about 75 feet when the engine struck the front end of the car. He turned the machine just before the collision, he said, and it came to a stop with the wheels just off the south side of the pavement. The girl was found about 20 feet ahead of the machine, he said. Edward Albers, an occupant of the car, saw and warned him of the approaching train about the moment he noticed it himself, Manley testified.

Tells of Car Speed
Albers said the car was going from 35 to 40 miles per hour and that it was 90 or 100 feet from the crossing before the train was seen.

Miss Doris Johnson, 202 N. Lave street, another occupant of the car, testified she heard the train whistle but that it had sounded far away. She didn't see the train light, she said.

Claude Miller, Shawano, brakeman who was riding on the left side of the engine cab, said the whistle was sounded at the whistle post about a fourth of a mile from the crossing and again about 30 or 100 feet from the crossing. He said the car was traveling toward the crossing at a speed of 50 or 60 miles per hour while the train was going about 20 or 25 miles per hour. The car struck the train at the steps to the cab entrance, he said.

Whistle Blown
G. J. Prast, Shawano, fireman who also was riding on the left side of the engine cab, also testified that the engine whistle was blown at the whistle post 400 or 500 feet from the crossing. There are four regular trains on the line a day and the freight was running an hour late, he said.

Donald Bloudou, Appleton, took the stand and related how he stopped after the accident and took the injured girl to St. Elizabeth hospital. She was pronounced dead upon entrance, he said.

Members of the coroner's jury were C. B. Andersen, Ed Sonnenberg, Adolph Teitz, Jerry Heup, Frank Budney and Peter Kasei, Menasha.

$15,000 Goal Is Exceeded by 'Y' Campaign Group

Workers Hear Broadcast On Anniversary of Founder

Cowboys and cowgirls in the Y. M. C. A. roundup which ended last night brought in 830 members and $12,037.10. Homer Gebhardt, general secretary of the "Y," said today.

Adding to these figures the members now on the roll and the anticipated income for the year, the total membership has reached 1,138 and the fund $15,069.30. The campaign was shooting at a membership of 1,200 and a fund of $15,000. Although last year's campaign produced a few more members, it was carried over an extra day. The financial drive this year, however, was more successful than the 1936 campaign.

The final general meeting of the Y. M. C. A. campaign divisions was held last night. After listening to a half-hour broadcast from London and New York in commemoration of the birth of George Williams, founder of Y. M. C. A., the workers heard the Rev. G. H. Blum, one of the campaign co-chairmen, give an historical summary of the founder's life.

Entertainment at last night's dinner was provided by members of the She-Men's ranch, the women's division, who presented an original stunt.

Appleton Girl Is Paralysis Victim

Rehfeldt Elected Head of Veterans Of Foreign Wars

Installation of New Officers Will Be Held Nov. 8

Start Final Check-Up Under Soil Program

Community committee under the federal soil conservation program met yesterday with R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent, and discussed the final check-up on new seeding.

The check-up work was started today. The committee will check maps with the farmers and sign them. Sectional meetings of the committee will be held at Black Creek, Shiocton and Freedom to review work within the next week.

No new applications for maps will be taken after Nov. 1, the county agent said. He urged farmers to use all their soil building allowances. Last year only 63 per cent of the allowance in the state and about 77 per cent of the allowance in the county were used.

Two Major Bills Given Approval In Upper House

merous amendments, which the Progressive bloc—apparently firm in the saddle—voted down one after another.

With only two amendments left on the clerk's desk Speaker Paul Alfonsi (P) Pence tried to shut off any others by moving the previous question which would have called for the end of debate and a vote.

On this maneuver Assemblyman P. Bradley McIntyre (R), Lancaster, moved a call of the house and tied up the legislative business temporarily.

Reorganization Bill
The senate, meanwhile, had opened debate on the governor's bill to reorganize the state departments and of 18 votes to 4 separated the department of agriculture and markets from the measure.

Chester Dempsey (D) Hartland, author of the amendment to ex-administrative agency which deals with farm problems should not be tied up in a complicated measure involving other government bureaus.

He said reorganization of the agriculture department was a subject that should be taken up in regular session.

Dempsey had the support of three Progressives, John Cashman, Denmark, Earl Leverich, Sparta and Joseph McDermid, Ladysmith.

Cashman declared that a part-time policy making board, as proposed for the various departments, would result in a commission having "lots of power over the farmers and not very much knowledge about the farm business."

Ordered to engrossment in the senate was the bill authorizing cities of the first, second and third class to create housing authorities and receive federal aid. The vote was 18 to 11, virtually the same as on the agricultural authority.

Senator Chester Dempsey (D), Hartland, charged the agricultural bill originated at Washington and was promoted by professional farm "racketeers" who do not understand the farmers' problems.

where he was known principally as an adviser on disarmament and European affairs.

A native of Portland, Maine, he was graduated from Dartmouth and Harvard universities and was an instructor in English at Harvard, a position he resigned to enter the foreign service Aug. 27, 1918. The scholarly career man never married.

After serving at Stockholm and Bucharest, Marinier was appointed in October, 1926, as technical assistant to the American delegation at the second session of the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva.

Since then his principal work had been in the disarmament field, first as secretary to the legation at Bern, Switzerland, and later as a technical delegate to disarmament conferences. He was one of the negotiators of the Kellogg-Briand peace plan of 1928.

(Marinier left Paris March 26, last year, for the Syrian post. He had been counselor of the United States embassy at the French capital since April, 1931.)

(His 19-year record in the state department included such positions as chief of its western Europe division. He entered the diplomatic service as third secretary of the American legation at Stockholm.)

(Previously he had served two years as an assistant in English at Harvard university while completing post-graduate work.)

Plan State Meeting of Council of Agriculture

Herman Ihde, Neenah, president of the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture, will be one of the speakers at the ninth annual get-together conference of the council at Green Bay Oct. 21-22. Nationally-known farm leaders and educators will appear on the program. Among the speakers will be C. A. Dykstra, president of the state university; Senator Michael Kresky, Green Bay; C. E. Claffin, general manager of the Equity Cooperative Livestock Sales association, Milwaukee; and John Brandt, president of the Land O'Lakes Creameries, Inc., Minneapolis. The convention banquet will be held Thursday evening, Oct. 21, at the Northland hotel.

Development of farm markets and products, followed a methodical, parliamentary battle in which the Progressive bloc held the upper hand. The vote was 17 to 12.

The assembly had been in session since 10:30 a. m. and had sent to Governor La Follette two more of the 11 bills the chief executive offered in the amended call for the special session.

At midnight administration chiefs demanded that the farm bill be reported out to the house by the finance committee so it could be pushed through final passage.

Quits at 1:45
Assemblyman R. W. Peterson (R) Berlin, seeking an adjournment until 10 a. m. Tuesday moved a call of the house. With numerous members absent this maneuver tied up proceedings until 1:45 a. m. when the assembly finally agreed to quit.

Three bills have now been sent to the executive office, leaving eight more, including the doomed highway safety measure, to be acted upon before sine die adjournment Saturday.

The three measures approved by both houses are the child labor bill, giving regulations already made by the industrial commission the force of law, the bill liberalizing the basis of eligibility for old age pensions and a minor act concerning relocation of a highway in Pierce county.

Duncan Is Target
Thomas M. Duncan, the governor's adviser, who has been closely watching the progress of the administration program, came under the scrutiny of Progressive foes in the assembly. They moved to have him excluded from the legislative halls as a lobbyist during sessions but the motion lost 54 to 13.

The assembly passed and sent to the senate the bill authorizing the Milwaukee school board to raise approximately $500,000 additional property taxes to meet what the school says will be a deficit in school operation costs. The Milwaukee city council opposed this measure.

Ordered to engrossment in the senate was the bill authorizing cities of the first, second and third class to create housing authorities and receive federal aid. The vote was 18 to 11, virtually the same as on the agricultural authority.

Senator Chester Dempsey (D), Hartland, charged the agricultural bill originated at Washington and was promoted by professional farm "racketeers" who do not understand the farmers' problems.

Japan Wants Peace In China, College Students are Told

Fear of Russia Is Factor in Current Invasion, Dr. White Says

Fear of Russia and a desire for peace and order in China with resultant prosperity are the motives behind Japan's military invasion of China, Dr. Hugh Vernon White of Boston, author and traveler, told Lawrence college students at a convocation this morning in Memorial chapel.

"Japan does not want war," the speaker declared. "It wants to get by intimidation a large protective area between itself and Russia and place the Chinese army under its direction."

Japan is being condemned for her actions, but Dr. White believes there are two sides to the situation in the Far East.

"No nation recognizes China's ability to keep peace within her own country," the speaker stated. "Japan feels it is her duty and responsibility to police the Orient."

"These Japanese moves are the result of the Japanese army taking the bit in their mouths."

Japanese citizens showed in two general elections that they are opposed to war, Dr. White said, but they are under complete control of the police and government.

In condemnation of Japan's behavior, Dr. White said, it must be pointed out that two years ago Japan began systematically to encourage disorder in China by political manipulations. Japs, Koreans, and other subjects of Japan promoted the use of opium in China to weaken its peoples' morale and Japan has been guilty of economically degrading China by smuggling in rayon and cheap goods, he stated.

"Do not judge orientals by our standards," the speaker stated in remarking that the fundamental principle of human association for both Chinese and Japanese is compromise. "Do not hate Japan. The people do not want war and are honestly believe it is their duty to police the Orient."

wield its expulsion powers against "obstinate" unions.

"I say to those who want to go (to the CIO), get out and leave us alone," he shouted.

With the matter of CIO union expulsion, a burning issue for two years, disposed of for the time delegates turned their attention to an allied controversy—a challenge of the right to a convention seat of Charles P. Howard, CIO secretary and president of the A. F. of L.-affiliated Typographical union.

The convention's credentials committee, charged last week with giving Howard and his fellow printer delegates "a run around" by delaying action on the case until the meeting was near an end, held a hearing last night.

Basis of Challenge
The challenge of Howard's right to a seat was based on the Carpenters union's complaint that he signed a CIO charter for a rival organization of Pacific coast lumber workers.

A report of the resolutions committee on various proposals recommending a curb on the powers of the national labor relations board also was ready for convention action.

Criticism of the labor board and pointed attacks on federal bureaus for allegedly interfering in the affairs of the labor movement drew applause in the convention last week. Accusations that the board favored CIO unions in certain decisions were heard often.

Some delegates were particularly eager for convention action recommending a curb on the board's right to interfere in inter-union disputes such as have arisen recently in areas where A. F. of L. and CIO affiliates are struggling for control.

Would Amend Act
Proposals also have been offered for recommending amendment of the Wagner act so that workers should vote by crafts, the type of union organization generally favored by the A. F. of L. in labor board elections, to determine collective bargaining agents.

The heavy vote favoring authorization of the executive council to expel unions which fail to renounce the CIO came on adoption of a resolutions committee report which also provided for:

1. Continuation of peace overtures with Lewis and the CIO through a committee.

2. Broadening of the federation's policy of "non-partisan political activities" to battle government officials or candidates "who would in any way encourage or support the CIO."

Still Hope for Peace
3. A call for political leaders and employers to "decide whether to submit themselves to the evils of a dictatorship which is not less repugnant because it springs from leaders of labor who have forsaken their trust."

Green pleaded with delegates, before they voted, to consider that the report called for continuation of peace overtures.

"I know it is the intention of the executive council, if this report is adopted, still to pursue a patient policy," he said.

"We don't ask anyone to surrender any views. We ask these views to come back to the A. F. of L. convention and we will fight out the issues on the floor, just as we are fighting out this issue this afternoon."

Caution Toward Buying of Steel Retards Revival

Fall Volume Not Up to Expectations; Consumers Prefer to Wait

A cautious attitude toward steel buying is delaying the anticipated fall revival, says Steel.

Although the automotive industry has rounded the corner and bookings from that source show definite improvements, the volume is less than expected. Other consumers, with the exception of farm implement and household equipment manufacturers, are tending to reduce inventories and are buying on a hand-to-mouth basis.

Mills again are in a position to offer early deliveries and with neither price advances nor labor difficulties in immediate prospect, consumers prefer to wait.

Steelworks operations again were adjusted downward in all leading districts last week, lowering the national operating rate 8 points to 66 per cent of capacity. Pittsburgh was down 9 points to 62 per cent, Cincinnati 19 to 70, St. Louis 4 to 60, Detroit 8 to 82, Youngstown 5 to 60, eastern Pennsylvania 41 to 55, Chicago 101 to 65, Birmingham 6 to 77, Buffalo 4 to 70, Cleveland 4 to 63 and Wheeling 8 to 74. New England was unchanged at 65 per cent.

September's steel ingot production at 4,301,899 gross tons was 11.8 per cent under the August figure of 4,875,671 tons, but exceeded the September, 1936, output of 4,151,388 tons. Production for the first nine months this year totaled 42,498,769 gross tons, exceeding by nearly 27 per cent output of 33,526,142 tons in the corresponding period last year and coming within 2 per cent of the 43,353,830 tons produced in the first nine months of 1935.

Export inquiry continues in fair volume, headed by an inquiry for 20,000 tons for pig iron, including 10,000 tons of bismarck, for England. Inquiries for 1000 tons of finished steel were received from Holland. Japan has placed 8000 to 12,000 tons of plates and shapes, mainly plates, for Manchukuo.

Exports at High Rate
Exports of iron and steel, excluding scrap, continued at a high rate during August although the total for the month was 11.6 per cent in quantity and 8.9 per cent in value under July, the high month since 1917. Foreign shipments, excluding scrap, were 400,023 gross tons, compared with 491,421 tons in July. August shipments were 326.4 per cent greater than those of August last year. Scrap exports aggregated 478,296 tons, compared with 428,047 tons in July. For eight months this year scrap exports reached the previously unequaled record of 3,079,003 tons. Iron and steel shipments, excluding scrap, were 2,239,521 tons. Pig iron continued as the principal export product.

Settlement or higher wages for railroad operating employees generally is considered a step toward removal of numerous problems confronting the carriers. Higher freight rates may be allowed by the interstate commerce commission in time to be reflected in fourth-quarter earnings. If granted, the increase in rates will facilitate buying of new railroad equipment.

That automobile builders rapidly are returning to full production is indicated by an increase of almost 25,000 units to 69,000. General Motors assembled 35,500 or 20,000 more than the preceding week. Chrysler was up 2000 to 18,500 and independent producers built an estimated 15,000. Ford remained closed.

A third blast furnace will be built at the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Co., contracts having been awarded last week. This new stack will have capacity about 50 per cent greater than Ford's two present 800-ton furnaces. Three of the company's present ten open hearths are to be rebuilt to bring monthly capacity to 9000 tons each, compared to the present 5000 tons. According to reports from Detroit, Ford soon will be in a position to produce 50 per cent of his own steel requirements.

Lack of consumer interest caused iron and steel scrap to settle still lower. Steel's composite declining 50 cents to $16.67, the lowest since the second week in December. The iron and steel composite declined 8 cents to $39.73 reflecting the weakness in scrap. Finished steel composite is steady at $81.70.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Lickly

"And after you're done performing that service for mankind there's the dinner dishes in the sink."

Dirty Public Buildings Part of American Scene

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Anyone having occasional business in public buildings in this country is certain to be impressed by the soiled and frowsy state of these temples of government which are pretty much alike everywhere outside Washington. In the national capital, it must be admitted, they do things much better and even such gruesome old heaps as the treasury and the state department are kept in reasonably tidy condition. But our city halls and county courthouses and the public office buildings in our state capitals as well as post offices and federal courthouses are of a depressing sameness as to dirt, dust, tobacco stains and smell. Just as jails, poorhouses and asylums have a distinctive odor, as of misery and disinfectant, those others possess an atmosphere more readily sensed by the spirit than the nose which conveys the thought of contempt for government and for the people under it. The Chicago city hall and county building, and the New York municipal building are alike in this respect, and the new Palace of Justice hard by the Tombs, though dedicated it seems but yesterday, already has acquired its layer of grime inside and out. It seems that holders of public office and those having regular business in such structures have somewhat the same feeling about them that little boys have about new football pants. Little boys believe that new football pants should be smeared with mud and grass stains without delay, and a new public building remains new no longer than it takes the occupants and regular frequenters to foul it with the traditional marks of untidiness. That is almost no time at all.

Private Buildings Stay Cleaner Much Longer

A building owned by private capital, though handling much greater traffic may be kept in good order for many years, and with no greater and probably much smaller staff. But turn over a courthouse or city hall to a lot of judges and other politicians, and inside two years it will have deteriorated to the level of all the other buildings of like character. There will be tobacco juice on the tiles and around the feet of the columns, cigarette butts flattened and frayed in all the corridors and greasy dust in the elevator cages and on the walls of the shafts. Doors will be blocked off, make-shift partitions erected and furniture stowed in the halls. And over all there will be an air of frowiness difficult to describe but easily perceived and recognized as typical, for it is not to be found in any other buildings. It is the spirit of the public place, the feeling that because the place belongs to the public nobody has any obligations to respect it.

The architecture has changed much, and now runs pretty much to the box-car simplicity, which is supposed to combine efficiency with charm. Older ideas always called for a billowy female stripped to the waist, holding a sheaf of wheat in one hand and a sickle in the other and a big, muscular guy holding a sledge-hammer over a geared wheel carved out of Indian limestone by some leading head-stone cutter. But these figures, set above the door, always become pigeon roosts and, with artistic progress, we decided to put the money into retiring rooms for the judges and big bronze doors. But the difference is only superficial, and you may enter a new edifice or an old one wearing a blind-fold and detect no difference, although you will be instantly aware that you are in a public building.

Wisconsin Farmer Getting More for Produce This Year

Increase Shown in First Eight Months Despite Drop in August

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington — The Wisconsin farmer got more from the sale of farm products the first eight months of this year than for the last three years, and nearly twice as much as in 1934, the department of agriculture reports.

At the end of August, total receipts from the sale of farm products in Wisconsin were $207,655,000, compared with $186,765,000 in 1936 and $123,336,000 in 1934.

August Sales Drop
Sales during the months of August alone, however, dropped 7 per cent from the 1936 August figure. The drop in Wisconsin receipts was the most pronounced of any other the north central states, according to the report, and was probably due largely to a decrease in income from dairy products.

August receipts of Badger farmers from the sale of farm products totaled $24,278,000, compared with $26,204,000 in August 1936. This is still way above the 1934 and 1935 August totals of $17,465,000 and $19,404,000 respectively.

Wisconsin farmers received over four times as much from the government during the first eight months of this year than in 1936, but only about twice as much as in 1935. At the end of August, payments from the government totaled $10,147,000. Payments for the month of August alone were $228,000 compared with $59,000 in August 1936.

$200,000 Spent For New Homes at Neenah This Year

Permits for Construction Of 37 Dwellings Issued Since Jan. 1

Neenah — With nearly $200,000 being spent for construction of 37 new homes, 38 new garages, additions and a large amount of remodeling which has been done in Neenah from Jan. 1 to the end of the first week in October, there is apparently little indication that the curtailed rise in building costs has alienated people's urge to own their own homes and improve the dwellings in which they live, according to statistics compiled today at the office of the assistant city building inspector.

During this year of increased construction July annexed all honors when permits were issued for building and improvements at a cost of $56,600, with May and September standing out as the second and third peak building months respectively, there having been $29,030 spent for construction in May and $27,422 in September.

The number of new homes built during July nearly doubled the number of any other month, there having been 12 new dwellings built in that month. There were also six garages constructed, a warehouse, a root beer stand, and some remodeling and additions.

Seven Houses in May
The difference in the months of May and September, however, lies in the fact that in May there were seven houses built while in September only one permit was issued for the erection of a new dwelling.

There were also six garages built in May while permits for the construction of three were granted in September. But September stands out as the month for remodeling and additions.

Twenty-seven of the houses built so far this year have each cost less than $5,000, while eight cost from $5,000 to $10,000, and two $10,000 or more.

Statistics on the cost of building each month, the number of homes built, the number of garages constructed, remodeling and additions are as follows:
January, $8,150, one home, no garages, 1 remodeling, two additions; February, $4,750, one home, one garage, one remodeling; March, $2,850, three homes, no garages, one filling station, one addition; April, $7,073, one home, four garages, three additions, four remodeling; May, $29,030, seven homes, six garages, eight remodeling, and one addition; June, $23,515, four homes, seven garages, three remodeling, and one addition; July, $56,600, 12 homes, six garages, warehouse, root beer stand, three remodeling and one addition; August, $21,210, five homes, seven garages, five remodeling; September, $27,422, one home, three garages, two remodeling and three additions; October, $8,935, two homes, four garages, six remodeling.

Finish Neenah Paving Project

Build Last Few Feet of Curbing, Walks on Commercial Street Today

Neenah — With the last few feet of curbing, gutters and sidewalks being laid today activity on the N. Commercial street paving project will finally stop, according to A. G. P. M. city engineer.

According to the construction superintendent for the Mel and Lutz company, Wausau, which is doing the job, it has taken almost as long to excavate the street as it did to raise it and as long to lay curbs and gutters as it did to lay the concrete on the street proper and almost as long to lay and patch sidewalks along the street as it did to lay the street.

Although only about 2,000 feet of new sidewalk has been installed, the superintendent estimated that it wouldn't have taken much longer to lay sidewalks on both side of the street as it did to lay the 2,000 feet and patch the rest of the sidewalks which were not installed.

Andersen Tells Lions Club About Legion Gathering

Delegate Highlights of National Convention At New York

Menasha — C. B. Andersen, Wisconsin state delegate to the National American Legion convention in New York in September, described highlights of the convention to members of the Lions club at their meeting Monday noon at the Memorial building.

Mr. Andersen briefly described the important stands taken by the legion in their business sessions and also described the space-time escapades. "The Legion denounced all 'ism', Mr. Andersen said, 'including nazism, fascism and communism and voted a lobby to get congress to deport the foreign army working in our midst.'"

The legion also advocated the biggest army and navy, along with the best aviation corps, to force peace. This army was advocated for defense only and not for any aggressive war. Universal draft act and child welfare were other programs endorsed by the legion.

An intermediate policy was adopted by the legion on the industrial conflicts, according to Mr. Andersen. The legion recommended that congress force capital and labor to settle their differences and deplored the strong arm methods of both.

The gigantic size of the parade, the crowds jamming the sidewalks to watch and the large numbers of legion members in attendance were described by Mr. Andersen. There were 2,400 delegates from Wisconsin and Wisconsin night at the Hotel New Yorker attracted 4,000 members and former Wisconsin residents. Wisconsin firms cooperated in advertising the state by providing beer, cheese, pop corn, potato chips and other products. Wisconsin received valuable publicity as a recreation center through the three floats sponsored by the conservation commission, according to Mr. Andersen.

Seek Funds to Aid In Operation of Children's Home

Campaign Designed to Provide Half of Institution's Budget

Neenah — Neglected and dependent children are served by the Children's Country Home, a private agency, at Winneconne, funds for which are being raised through the annual drive being carried on by the board of trustees.

The purpose of the budget fund campaign is to raise enough money to meet at least half of the expenses of the home. Although counties commit children to the home for care through the various county courts, counties pay only about half of the expenses required to operate the home.

The home, situated in a beautiful spot at the edge of the village of Winneconne with its front yard a veritable park which lies along the bank of the Wolf river and around the shore of a small bay of Lake Winneconne, strives to avoid the atmosphere of an "institution" and gives each child the individualized treatment that is possible through modern case-work methods.

The child is given security and love in a family group which is small enough to permit him to develop his best capacities. The home is non-denominational and is therefore open to boys and girls of any religious faith. The agency is administered under an incorporated board of trustees and is licensed through the state board of control as a child caring and child placing agency.

139-Acre Farm

The plant consists of a 139-acre diversified farm and three cottage units for children's homes. The farm supplies a large part of the food required by the family of children and workers as well as a fine experience outlet for boys and girls.

Children are accepted for care on a case study basis. Upon application an investigation is made to determine the child's needs and when such need is reported a case conference is held at which the case is weighed against the offerings of the home. The children are received by order of county and juvenile courts of the county of the child's residence. No children are received on private applications.

Caldermen Get 1-Day Vacation

Menasha High School '11' To Meet Kaukauna In Two Weeks

Menasha — With two weeks in which to prepare for the Kaukauna high school football game here Friday night, Oct. 22, Coach N. A. Calder Monday gave his Bluejay gridders a rest. Daily practices were to be resumed today.

The Menasha gridders came through the New London game without any serious injuries and all bumps and strains will vanish before the next game. The Kaukauna game promises to be a hard battle as the Kaws have come along rapidly since a shaky start early in the season. They defeated New London by a 22 to 7 score and last week trounced the St. Mary high team by a 14 to 0 score.

Fumbles have played an important part in the defeat suffered by the Bluejays in their two last games and the backs will receive plenty of drill in ball handling during the next two weeks.

The New London game also indicated that the players have not memorized their assignments on offensive plays perfectly, uncertainty marking the way they moved into the shift and spoiling the offense.

Racine Ordinance Banning Marathons Upheld by Tribunal

Madison — (1) — The Racine city ordinance forbidding marathons and all other forms of endurance contests was upheld today by the state supreme court.

The state law, which says that no person may participate in an endurance contest more than 16 hours in 24 or more than six days in one month, was enacted about a year after the Racine ordinance was passed in 1934.

An opinion written by Justice Oscar Fritz said that nowhere in this statute could be found express language that would forbid a city going further as Racine had done — by outright prohibition of marathons.

He cited previous decisions of the court on this point, particularly one stating that a municipality may enact an ordinance on the same subject as state legislation which does not conflict with but rather complements the state law.

He held the only difference between the state act on marathons and the Racine ordinance was that the latter went further in its prohibition and yet does not counter to the statute nor forbid anything the state has expressly licensed or authorized.

Seven Bouts Carded for First Amateur Show

Hans Ahl, Duket,
George Steffen
In Windup Goes

Program Scheduled for Thursday, Oct. 21,
At Armory G

THE CARD
Ernie Valente, West Allis, versus Frank Duket, Marinette, at 160 pounds.
Hans Ahl, Oshkosh, versus George Steffen, Lena, at 150 pounds.
Al Robbins, Oshkosh, versus Harry Tessedorf, West Allis, at 140 pounds.
Russ Tourtellotte, Neopit, versus Harry Kahl, West Allis, at 120 pounds.
Bob Hanner, Oshkosh, versus Joe Guadagni, West Allis, at 140 pounds.
Eddie Troxell, Oshkosh, versus Honeyboy Schoenborn, Neopit, at 135 pounds.
Cliff Lutz, Appleton, versus Hoxey Lamers, Little Chute, at 125 pounds.

AMATEUR boxing will make its first visit of the 1937-38 season at Armory G on Thursday evening, Oct. 21, it has been announced by Matchmaker Leslie J. Holzer. A 7-bout program has been arranged with the windup bouts going five rounds each.

Hans Ahl, Oshkosh, who has been showing in the amateur ring for many years, but who hasn't appeared here in a couple seasons, will return for one of the windup bouts and will take on George Steffen, veteran Lena boxer, at 150 pounds. Ahl has been staying close to the amateur game, it is said, and had acquired even more ability than when he was knocking over almost all comers a few years back. Steffen showed here last season and still likes a good, rough contest.

The other half of the windup will send Frank Duket, the popular Marinette boxer, against Ernie Valente, West Allis, at 160 pounds. The fight will be Valente's first in Appleton but the fact he has appeared on several Milwaukee cards indicates that he is good. Duket, of course, is the Green Bay golden gloves champ, a youngster with a lot of good bouts in his system and one who likes a good fight.

The other bouts will feature Fox river valley talent and three other West Allis boxers all of whom have ability.

A slight change in the admission prices has been announced by the league fight club. Tickets for the bouts are on sale at the usual places.

Vikings, Highs In Easy Workouts

Westberg Probably Lost to Lawrence for Saturday's Game

Lawrence college and Appleton High school gridders both indulged in easy workouts last night as the respective coaches had the boys limber up and get back into condition after the Sunday rest.

Both teams will resume their conference drives Saturday. Lawrence going to Monmouth, Ill., and Appleton entertaining Fond du Lac High school.

Lawrence, thoroughly keyed over its great showing against Carleton here Saturday when it held the powerful Carls to a 12 to 6 score, took things exceptionally easy. Several men didn't report in suits but received treatments for bruises and bumps.

Ken Westberg, back, apparently was injured the most. He suffered a couple cracked ribs and is pretty well taped up. He probably won't play against Monmouth. Joe Maerzwiler bruised his shoulder again and had a couple teeth chipped but it'll take more than that to stop him.

Vande Walle still is bothered by his foot while Bob Arthur's knee is responding slowly. If both should round into shape for the Monmouth game, however, Lawrence will stand an excellent chance of tripping the Sox.

The high school eleven punted, passed and generally chased the ball around at the Spencer street field with no one hurt and no one bruised. Tonight the same program is on tap with a little defensive work and maybe a scrimmage for extra measure.

PICK AMATEUR STAR
Six hundred sport leaders have been asked by the A. A. U. to vote on the amateur star they think deserving of the title of outstanding athlete of the year.

WHITE SOX TAKE LEAD IN CHICAGO CITY SERIES
The Chicago White Sox took a one game lead over their intra-city rivals, the Cubs, as they won the fifth game of the series, 6 to 4. Cub Pitcher Tex Carleton is shown here rounding first base on his way to second on an error by Monte Stratton, Sox hurler. Stratton threw the ball out of reach of Zeke Bonura, first baseman, which may account for his awkward position here. The umpire is Sears.

"Remember 1912" Badgers Cry as They Prepare for Homecoming Next Saturday

Revise Plays to Improve Offense Of Marquette U.

Hilltoppers Meet Kansas State at Manhattan Saturday

MILWAUKEE — Effecting a number of alterations in important plays as the opening feature of Monday's practice, Coach Paddy Driscoll of the Marquette university football team was happy to see definite improvement in offense as the Golden Avalanche later faced the freshmen in 45 minutes of regulation scrimmage.

The Hilltoppers' next assignment is with Kansas State college at Manhattan next Saturday afternoon.

Changes put in effect Monday mostly pertained to blocking assignments, both in the backfield and on the line. Tarzan Taylor's forward wall particularly was revamped as to its individual duties in the early part of the workout and paid dividends with convincing "clearing out" in the ensuing scrimmage.

Work On Passes
Driscoll and Backfield Coach Red Dunn also dressed up their passing attack, and hope to have their aerials functioning better against the young men of Manhattan. Time and again in games this fall, the Hilltoppers have had men in the clear for passes only to have the plays bog down because the thrower was rushed or inaccurate.

Forward pass defense also got some attention. In a preliminary secondary drill, the coaches used a dummy composed of Capt. Ray Sorenson, a Harry Leysenar, Andy Bakula, and Frank Austin and worked them against passes thrown by Dan Koster, the husky sophomore whose kick after Leysenar's touchdown gave the Avalanche its 7 to 6 margin of victory over South Dakota last week.

Rejoicing the squad Monday were Colonel Betz, quarterback, and Dan Foss, guard, a pair of promising sophomores who went on the shell three weeks ago with knee injuries. Neither will be in shape for next Saturday's battle with Kansas State but they hope to be in line for the Michigan State tilt at East Lansing, Oct. 23. Added to the casualty list was Brendan (Red) Williams junior halfback who has a bad leg.

Freshman Coach Marvin Bell scouted Kansas State last week and was busy Monday teaching the Wildcats maneuvers to a frosh eleven.

Dempsey's "Discoverer" Dies at Racine Home

Racine — John Wagner, 79, retired sportsman, died yesterday. The promoter and restaurant owner is credited with starting Jack Dempsey on his road to fame as heavyweight champion of the world. In 1918 he staged a bout between Dempsey and Homer Smith at Racine. Dempsey, then an unknown, was broke and hungry. Wagner, it is said, took care of his appetites and then looked him for the fight. It didn't last a round, and Dempsey immediately became an attraction. The ex-champion visited his benefactor here recently.

Wagner served in the state assembly and was at one time a member of the Racine county board and sheriff of Racine county.

Today a Year Ago — Tazio Nuvolari of Italy won Vanderbilt cup automobile race before 60,000.

Three Years Ago — Luigi Beccali, Italian 1500 meter Olympic titleholder, beat Joe McCuskey in 1,500 meter race in 4:02.

Five Years Ago — Jimmy DeForest, veteran trainer, died at Long Branch, N. J.; Frank B. York, president of Brooklyn Dodgers, resigned and was succeeded by Stephen W. McKeever.

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)
MADISON — "Remember 1912" will be the slogan cry at the University of Wisconsin this weekend for the homecoming game with the University of Iowa at Camp Randall Stadium.

Walls in the capital city are painted with it, silver and red badges shout it, and the entire school is delving into the history of that year to determine why it should remember. And the reason has been found, too.

It seems that "way back in '12 the home town boys were asking that even then old question, "Well, what kind of a team are we going to have at Madison this year?"

The reply was framed in just about these words: "Well, Coach Richards has gone down to Iowa State; Bill Juneau, the new coach, didn't get here early enough to hold a spring practice, and the team has graduated both guards, both tackles, the center, and the quarterback. Outside of that, things are fine, thanks!"

That, to most people, would have looked like a pretty gloomy prospect, but, under constant drilling and training, the huskies of that state university squad of a quarter of a century ago ended the season with a pretty fair record, compared with recent years.

The scoreboard looked like this: Wisconsin 13, Lawrence 0. Wisconsin 56, Northwestern 0. Wisconsin 41, Purdue 0. Wisconsin 20, Chicago 12. Wisconsin 64, Arkansas 7. Wisconsin 28, Iowa 10. Wisconsin 14, Minnesota 0.

The old grads, who will swarm over the campus next Saturday and Sunday, are particularly proud of that latter figure, and admit with modesty that they not only shut out Minnesota, but did it with 11 men. The Badgers didn't make a substitution all through the game, which the boys of '12 claim should be a record of some sort.

Captain of that team, which the campus will honor in person this weekend, was Joseph Hoefel, now of Green Bay, 167 pound left end. A son, Joseph Hoefel, Jr., of Green Bay, is today eagerly participating in student plans to honor his dad and his teammates of 25 years ago.

The entire 1912 team will be the special guests of the 1937 homecoming committee Saturday, while the 1937 football representatives of the school attempt to repeat their predecessors' humbling of the team from the corn state.

POHL NAMED CAPTAIN

Madison — (U) — The University of Wisconsin football team, with a record of three victories, no defeats and an unbroken goal, yesterday started preparation for their homecoming game with Iowa Saturday.

Coach Harry Stuhldreher announced Neil Pohl, veteran senior center from Milwaukee again will lead the eleven. He held the same honor last week against Chicago.

Action on Camp Randall practice field was held to a very short signal practice. Stuhldreher explaining several new formations which he hopes to use against the Hawkeyes.

Erv Windward, Milwaukee quarterback, was absent, but is certain to play. He was kept out of the Chicago game and the two week layoff has done his injured leg a lot of good.

The other casualty was Billy Schmitz, sophomore halfback. He suffered a severely bruised hip, but was expected to recover by Saturday. All other members of the squad came through the Maroon game without injury.

Lawrence Plays Monmouth Scots Next Saturday

Game to Feature Illinois School's Homecoming Fete

MONMOUTH, ILL. — Homecoming, the day that brings alumni and friends back to the old campus to check up on college affairs, will be celebrated at Monmouth college on Saturday, Oct. 16. A busy all day program has been planned that will be climaxed by the football game with Lawrence college.

Lawrence and Monmouth did not meet last year but they fought close games on the two preceding years, each team being credited with one win. The Wisconsin team showed plenty of strength in downing Northwestern college in the opening tilt. Cornell college holds victories over both teams in the only lose each suffered in the opening weeks of play. The outlook is for a big afternoon of football when the Monmouth Scots meet the Vikings of Lawrence.

The complete homecoming program includes a parade in the morning with prizes for the best floats that carry out the idea of the homecoming theme "scotties of 1937." The usual exhibition games between fraternities in the touch football league and a hockey game by the girls are other features of the program. A giant pep meeting is also being planned. Social events include the dinners and luncheons of various organizations and the big "open house" in the social rooms to which alumni and guests will be welcome.

Only good weather for the outdoor events of the program is needed. Plans to care for the pleasure and enjoyment of guests are being carefully supervised by a student committee.

'Make or Break' For Minnesota In Ann Arbor Tilt

Kipke Sees Possibility of Win for Michigan Over Gophers

BY EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO — A big question mark will follow Minnesota into its battle at Ann Arbor with Michigan next Saturday.

The Gophers, only a few weeks ago the odds-on choice to win national and Big Ten honors, now have the fans guessing as a result of their showing against Nebraska and Indiana. Against the Cornhuskers Bernie Bierman's team flashed real power for a few moments, then became a sluggish, unwieldy machine. In barely defeating Indiana, the Gophers did not look like a team which pre-season information said would roll over most opponents unmercifully.

Apparently it is "make or break" for the Gophers against the Wolverines. Michigan, against Northwestern, indicated it has one of the best lines in the conference. If the Gophers fail to unleash the latent power which many observers insist is still there, Michigan may capitalize on Minnesota's none-too-strong aerial defense and smooth the title path for other teams. Defeat of the Gophers by a team which has lost two games would incline many fans to the belief that glowing pre-season reports of Minnesota power may have grown out of past accomplishment.

Hold Secret Practice
The Gophers started heavy work today and Wednesday and Thursday will hold secret practice. Far from downhearted, Michigan's squad rushed back to work with high spirit, drawing an observation from Coach Harry Kipke that "I wouldn't be surprised if we win Saturday."

At Purdue, Coach Mel Edward began building reserve strength for the Boilermakers, who will test Northwestern's champions, Purdue, although defeated by Ohio State, showed a good attack and strong defense in whipping Carnegie Tech and must be given a chance to upset the Wildcats, who had a light drill yesterday and then looked at movies of the Michigan game.

Indiana, which entertains Illinois, felt the injury jinx. Four Hoosier regulars — Kenderdine, Anderson, Davis and Sirtosky — may not be in top physical shape for the Illinois, who also worked yesterday with several first stringers on the sidelines nursing bruises from the merciless battle with Notre Dame.

Iowa worked on offense in preparation for battle against Wisconsin's promising Badgers, who were put through an easy signal drill by Coach Harry Stuhldreher as a reward for their 27 to 0 win over Chicago. The Chicago eleven, facing the invasion of Princeton's Tiger, worked on defense. Ohio State has an open date Saturday.

Notre Dame, which travels east against Carnegie Tech, ran through plays. Coach Elmer Layden made several shifts and said every position on the first team still is open.

M. U. Will Meet Two Texas Teams

1938 Grid Card Shows T. C. U. and Southern Methodist

Milwaukee — An attractive 8-game schedule, by far the heaviest in the history of the local school, has been announced for the 1938 Marquette university Golden Avalanche football team by Athletic Director Conrad M. Jennings.

Featuring the card will be inter-sectional battles with Southern Methodist, to be faced at Soldier Field, Chicago; Texas Christian, which Marquette met in the Cotton Bowl game in Dallas last winter, and Arizona, and the annual classics with Wisconsin and Michigan State.

Four major opponents — Kansas State, Texas Christian, Iowa State and Michigan State — will be faced on the home field in Milwaukee. In addition to the Southern Methodist battle in Chicago, the Hilltoppers will engage Wisconsin at Madison, St. Louis at St. Louis, Mo., and Arizona at Tucson.

Jennings' announcement marks the first time that Marquette athletic authorities have ever been able to reveal their football schedule a year in advance.

The 1938 card follows:
Oct. 1 — Wisconsin at Madison.
Oct. 8 — Southern Methodist at Soldier Field, Chicago.
Oct. 14 (night) — Kansas State in Milwaukee.
Oct. 22 — Texas Christian in Milwaukee.
Oct. 29 — Iowa State in Milwaukee.
Nov. 5 — St. Louis university at St. Louis.
Nov. 12 — Michigan State in Milwaukee.
Nov. 19 — Arizona at Tucson.

County Leaguers Set New Date for Banquet

Because it is fairly apparent that the Outagamie County league's baseball championship series won't be finished this week, the first annual banquet of the loop has been scheduled for Oct. 25. Originally the date was Oct. 18. Black Creek and Dale are battling for the title and the Crackers won the first game last Sunday at Black Creek, 4 to 1. Hilbert J. Weller is president of the loop.

White Sox Take Lead In Series With Cubs

Chaff 'n Chatter

WHAT a job this contest has turned out to be!
It was almost a case of 15 winners or no count in the contest based on last weekend's grid scores for 12 persons picked 15 winners and 1 with 17 — believe it or not. And that's what makes it so tough.

So, the ticket for the Appleton-Fond du Lac high school football game has been awarded to Jim Weisgerber, 129 S. Walnut street, Appleton, for picking two perfect scores among his 16 winning teams. He picked Wisconsin 27, Chicago 0, and Kaukauna 14, Menasha St. Mary's 0. He also missed the Lawrence score by a point on the Carleton side and the Green Bay East-Oshkosh score by 3 points on the Oshkosh side. Which is more or less tops. The ticket will be mailed to him.

Dorothy Calder, 609 Broad street, Menasha, selected 17 winners but the ticket wasn't awarded to her because the contest calls for the greatest number of correct scores. But if Nate Calder's Menasha High school team had come through, and Notre Dame, for instance, we'd almost had to give her a ticket for coming so close to a perfect record of winners.

Notre Dame's tie, Menasha's defeat and Green Bay West's defeat were the biggest upsets of the week. However, Leon Bodoh, New London, called West's defeat as did his brother Lloyd. Incidentally, the two must have a great time guessing scores for Leon had 16 winners and Lloyd 15. Lloyd, Norbert Gossens, Kimberly, and Jerome Lamers, Little Chute, came closest to the Shawano-

American Leaguers Cop Fifth Game by Score Of 6 to 4

HOLD 3 TO 2 EDGE

Kreevich Homers for Winners, Marty For Losers

CHICAGO — (U) — Jimmy Dykes' White Sox, with the top of the batting order providing the punch when hits meant runs, came within a game of winning their fifteenth Chicago championship yesterday, defeating the Cubs, 6 to 4, at Comiskey park before 11,575 spectators.

The victory gave the American leagues three wins to two for the National league representatives, giving the Sox a chance, through another triumph today at the same park, to take their fourth straight city baseball crown.

The Sox were out 11 to 8 but their safeties were more timely and they fielded snappily on several occasions when the Cubs threatened to take command. Little Mike Kreevich, who put the Sox ahead in the first frame with a long home run, drove in another marker in the seventh. Batting in the No. 3 spot behind Kreevich, Dixie Walker punched home two runs, as did the next man in the Sox batting list, Rip Radcliff.

Sox Never Headed

The Cubs mixed two hits and an error by Monte Stratton to knot the count in the third, but the American leaguers came right back for two runs in their half of that inning, getting them after two were out, and never were headed. Carleton, in losing his first game of the series to counterbalance his victory in the opener of the skirmish last week, allowed six hits in as many innings, the other two Sox safeties being off the veteran Charley Root, who entered the contest in the seventh after Carleton had retired in favor of a pinchhitter. Stratton, chalking up one victory in his first series start, allowed eight safeties, the other three Bruin bingles being off Clint.

Pupils Organize Touch Grid Teams

Speedball, Soccer, Badminton Also on Intramural Schedule

Twelve touch football teams have been organized at Roosevelt Junior High school for boys participating in the intramural program.

Captains of the various teams include William Burton, Robert Berg, Donald Jabas, Frank Verrier, Norman Nickasch, Chuck Kiefoth, John Rouse, William Morris, John Bartmann, Robert Bowers, Richard Lesselyong and Robert Johnson.

Burton's and Berg's teams are tied for first place on the section I schedule and Bowers' and Lesselyong's squads are leading the section 2 groups.

Seventh grade home room soccer team captains are Len Colvin, Jim Kimball, Bud Moore and Richard White. The 7x group is leading the league with two wins and one tie with the 7y group in second place.

The first round of a badminton tournament was also completed last week and the second round will be finished this week. A speed ball league has also been formed.

RAPPING out a 222, M. Forster scored the highest game in the Knights of Columbus league at Elks alleys last night as his team, Liethen Grains, outbowed the Puritan Bakers in two games. R. Liethen's 521 series was the highest for the winners while Bob Joyce paced the Bakers with a 556.

R. Marx dumped the pins for a 581 to hit the highest series of the evening and lead Marx Jewelers in a 3-game rout of Shamrocks. Gritz-macher's 582 was best for the losing quintet.

In winning two out of three games from the Wisconsin Telephone company, the Hamm Products hung up the best team game score of the session, 1,028. R. Hamm's 506 stood out on the Hamm tally sheet and B. Hobbs' 474 was the top series for the phone crew.

Two Tied For Lead

The Schaefer Dairy and Appleton State Bank teams, each with 11 games won and 4 lost, are tied for league leadership.

Faced by H. Hobbs' 448, the Dairy Keglers wallowed Adler Brau lead by J. Marx who scored a 511, in three straight games.

The Bankers also took all three of their games winning from Kaufman Hardware. Highest series on the Bankers' sheet, a 549, was scored by C. Kohl. R. Mahoney headed the Hardware men with 522.

Schmidt's Clothiers, resting in third place, cracked out a 3-game victory over the Peoples Laundry, with Klingert smacking the pins for a 541 series. Best mark on the Laundry team was made by Bauer who hit a 484.

Rechner Cleaners, paced by R. Gage's 515, beat Schmieders' Grocery in two out of three. W. G. Keller's 574 was highest for the grocery men.

Chalking up a 533, J. Schneider led the Exide Battery in a 2-game victory over Fountain Lumber. A 485 bowled by E. J. Fountain stood out in the lumbermen's column.

GRAPHIC GOLF

BY BEST BALL

THE BACKSTROKE

While a lateral shift of the body is a dangerous thing to employ in the backstroke from a standpoint of accuracy it is essential in this day of high powered shots to employ a good measure of body turn in the stroke. There is no need to shift the body back and forth as the swing is made yet many average golfers do this under the delusion they are making a correct body turn. Such a movement throws the head, which should remain stationary, out of alignment and thus the swing in its entirety.

To offset this not a few players try to swing with an arm movement alone, in which the weight at the top of the swing rests equally on the two feet and the club is lifted rather than swung to the top. From such a stance there can be no sweeping blow at the ball but only an arm and hand hit more or less directly downward, the player often trying a last minute bodily lunge. This is added to obtain greater distance but generally only succeeds in destroying the accuracy of the swing.

By pushing the club back by a turn of the left hip to the right, which in turn necessitates the straight left arm to travel to the right with the club, the head can remain stationary while the body moves freely beneath it. With such a movement a weight is transferred to the right foot and a complete wind up of the body made possible. The downward blow from such a position sweeps low along the ground and straight into the ball providing a large margin of safety in hitting.

Rule No. 1 for 1937 Hunters: Keep Your Eye on Your Gun!

THESE MEN ARE BOTH WRONG . . . Guns were not made to lean on. The hunter on the left can discharge his gun and start playing a harp. The other gentleman, if he plugs the muzzle and pulls the trigger, will not enjoy the sensation.

ONE OF THESE MEN IS RIGHT . . . Of course, the gun of the gentleman on the left isn't loaded. Hunters' guns never are. But if he should jar the trigger, he probably would face a manslaughter charge. His companion demonstrates the proper stance.

HOW TO DO IT . . . This is the way to go through a fence. An untouched, unmoved gun doesn't explode.

AND HOW NOT TO . . . This is not the way to go through a fence. It is a way to get your name in the obituary columns.

Sandwiching a 276 between scores of 149 and 151, Charles Hawkinsen hit the highest game score in last night's Riverside league as his Beaters lived up to their name by taking three straight from the Printers. Boehler's 538 series was the best score turned in by the losers.

The Machines, standing next to the Beaters in league rating, outbowed the Brackets in three games as H. Kirschenloer smacked a 580 series, the best of the evening. M. Werner rattled the maces for a 569 to lead the Brackets.

Paced by M. Ziemer's 526 series the Banders took two from the Finishers who were led by H. Young's 536. L. Last dumped the pins for a 564 as his team, the Cutters, won three from the Rulers. A Lemke's 555 was tops in the Rulers' scoring.

Woolen Mills Take 3 Games From Power Co.

Ray Crane collected games of 193, 177 and 201 for a high 576 series while P. Zell rolled a 207 game and L. Barlament hit 202 for the winners. Lloyd Fumal rolled the best Power company score of 483.

Nominate Lazzeri, Gomez For World Series Heroes

BY ALAN GOULD

NEW YORK (AP)—Nominations for role of world series hero show it's tossup between Tony Lazzeri and Lefty Gomez. . . . Supposed to be all washed up and by his own admission ready to quit active play, Lazzeri topped all series hitters with even 400, getting at least one base hit in every game and starting the winning rally in final contest.

Tony also feided his position perfectly, like all the rest of the world champions—Gomez pitched two artistic triumphs, putting him in record books with Herb Pennock and Jack Coombs for winning all five series starts. . . . Lefty set a record by getting walked twice in one inning and enjoyed the distinction of driving in the winning run in the last game.

Those Yankees shot our world series prognostications full of holes as well as the Giants. . . . Did we say southpaws could stop Murderer's Row? . . . Three out of four postside starts fizzled as the great Hubbell alone succeeded once in two attempts to halt the carnage. . . . Did we suggest the Giants' defense would be superior? . . . The Yanks played errorless ball throughout, for the first par performance in series records, while the Giants made nine misplays, seven of them by the usually iron-bound infield. . . . The two clubs were 50 points apart in hitting last year, only 12 this time, but the payoff was an extra base production, where the Yankees had a 2 to 1 advantage.

Joe's Bat Mark Skids

Joe DiMaggio's batting mark skidded to 273 for the series as he got only one hit, a home run, in the last two games, but observers from far and wide acclaimed the Yankee sophomore as baseball's No. 1 outfielder. . . . A few National leaguers dissented in behalf of Ducky-Wucky Medwick, of the Cardinals but for all-around ground coverage, throwing ability, and hitting power, the expert vote now is overwhelming for the period of the DiMaggio clan. . . . He still has a few laps to go before he can stand with Cobb, Ruth or Speaker but it's possible he may prove the greatest of them all before he's finished his big league career.

Walter Johnson, all time king of the fast ball pitchers, says the only right handed batsman he's seen with as much power as DiMaggio was Shoeless Joe Jackson. . . . And Arlie Latham, old time National leaguer who's seen the best of them, rates Jarring Joe as the best defensive outfielder he ever watched. . . . So far as we are concerned DiMaggio is the only flycatcher we have ever observed who gave the impression he's covering the entire outfield by himself. . . . Tip off on how much the Giants feared DiMaggio's throwing arm came in the sixth inning of the final game when Jim Rippel failed to go beyond second base on Hank Leiber's hard single to left center, despite the fact the Yankee star fumbled the ball. . . . That was the final "break" for Jack McCarthy's sacrifice attempt went sour and the Giants lost their best chance to crack Gomez wide open.

Wrigley Admits That Jurgens Is on Block

Chicago (AP)—Reports that Bill Jurgens, ace shortstop, will be used as trading material by the Chicago Cubs this winter gained strength today as Phil K. Wrigley, Cub owner, disclosed his hopes for generally strengthening the team for the 1938 campaign.

"I don't know whom Clarence Rowland (Cub Scout) has offered in his deals," Wrigley said, "but Jurgens probably was mentioned by him in discussions with St. Louis and Cincinnati."

"We are out to improve the entire club. Just where the improvement will be is problematical. I never have believed in strengthening one department and weakening another, but you can be sure we will improve our general strength."

Montana Elk Herd By Ray Osborne

NATION-WIDE howl of protest hit federal authorities following the recent announcement that 1,000 of the 3,000 elk in the herd in the Flathead National Forest would be killed by hunters due to the fact that officials felt there would be insufficient range to provide food throughout the winter.

The Flathead herd is one of the two remaining big bunches of elk in the United States, and sportsmen started a concerted drive to prevent the opening of the national forest near Kalispell, Montana, to hunters. Rather, they insist, 1,000 of the elk should be herded and transported to states which have mountainous sections suitable for the raising of elk.

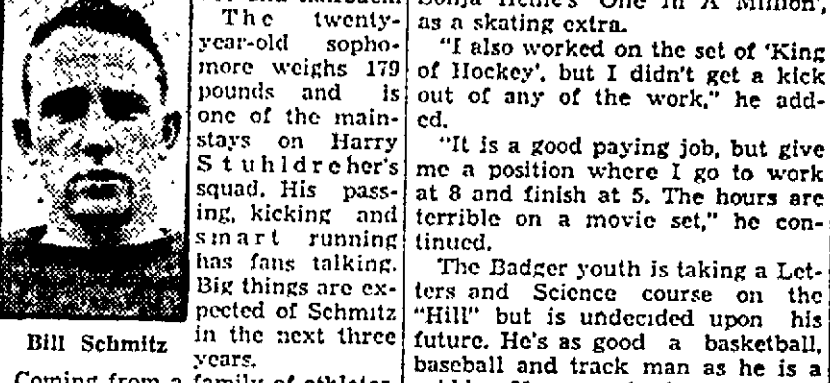

Texas sportsmen made a bid for as many of the elk as would be available, pointing out that in the Guadalupe Mountain range of west Texas that a small herd placed there a few years ago has multiplied so rapidly that there looms the possibility of a short open season on elk within a few years.

"Simply Slaughter,"

Sportsmen point out that losing hunters on the elk in the Flathead National Forest, where the majestic animals have been protected all their lives by regulation, is simply slaughter. Senator Tom Connolly of Texas made vigorous protests to federal authorities in Washington. His demands were backed by nationally-known writers and other sportsmen throughout the country. Lack of feed during the winter for the herd of elk under the control of the Idaho game and fish commission in the Selway state game preserve near Grangeville, Idaho, was given as the reason for the proposed slaughter. # Billy Schmitz, U. W. Grid Star, Worked in Movies

MADISON—(AP)—The only full-fledged resident of Madison and yet one of the most traveled men on the University of Wisconsin football team is Bill Schmitz, forward passing ace and halfback.

The twenty-year-old sophomore weighs 179 pounds and is one of the mainstays on Harry Stuhldreher's squad. His passing, kicking and smart running has fans talking. Big things are expected of Schmitz in the next three years.

Coming from a family of athletes, Schmitz was an outstanding athlete sport man during his prep school days. Sam Barry, head basketball and baseball coach and football scout of the University of Southern California, is Bill's uncle. Before Bill's graduation, Barry, knew only too well, the possibility of him becoming a great star out west. The style of play used on the coast is the type most adaptable to a player like the Wisconsin halfback. (Schmitz also is a nephew of Mrs. D. P. Steinberg, Sr., Appleton.)

Two summers were spent in Hollywood, working on the cinema set. Every June Bill transported a new car to the Coast, then worked in the movies until a week or two before the new school term started.

"The major part of my 'movie career' was spent working on the set, as a prop boy, but I did get into Sonja Henie's 'One In A Million', as a skating extra.

"I also worked on the set of 'King of Hockey', but I didn't get a kick out of any of the work," he added.

"It is a good paying job, but give me a position where I go to work at 8 and finish at 5. The hours are terrible on a movie set," he continued.

The Badger youth is taking a Letters and Science course on the "Hill" but is undecided upon his future. He is as good a basketball, baseball and track man as he is a griddler. However, he is planning to limit his athletic prowess to football and baseball.

"It's a happy medium," Schmitz said. Football is a rough and tough game, while the diamond gives one speed, deception and plenty of wind. The two sports should contract one another," he added.

"I guess I'm just an ordinary boy who lives to sleep, eat and be merry. There is nothing extraordinary about me. I'm just human like the rest of you," concluded Schmitz.

This statement depicts to a tee, the type of fellow Bill really is. He is quiet, but really knows what the game of football is about.

Watch Frank Murray's Virginians Next Season

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK (AP)—Watch out for Virginia in football next year. Coach Frank Murray (the old Marquette wizard) has 36 all-state high school players on his big 110-man freshman squad. . . . Travis (Ole Hoss) Jackson came out of that Jersey City night-mare with only four new gray hairs. . . . Fans wonder why the Atlanta Crackers canned Eddie Moore, who won two pennants and finished second once in his three years as manager. . . . Just what does a guy have to do to hold a job in that league?

6-Man Football Declared Safer Than 11-Man Game

MILWAUKEE (AP)—P. F. Neveerman, of Marinette, secretary of the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic association, in a report released yesterday, said six-man football "will no doubt prove safer" than the traditional game.

Neveerman said he was a spectator at the first regularly scheduled six-man football game played in Wisconsin, the contest being played at Coleman between the local high school and Peshtigo high.

The athletic head said the new game is much faster than the traditional game, and eliminates mass contact.

Rules covering the game are included in a rules supplement issued by the W. I. A. A. recently. The supplement also carries rules providing for return of the goal posts to the goal line, and designating neck tackling as unnecessary roughness in the 11-man game.

11,000 elk in that herd during September.

Professional hunters, guides and operators of hunting lodges benefited from that massacre of the majestic animals and many sportsmen wondered if the Montana invitation to slaughter elk was not the result of pressure brought on by this group of profiteers of nature's abundance after reading of the Idaho-owned herd's fate.

Indignation of the sportsmen is at a point where it reminds one of the strong public opposition which saved the buffalo in the Goodnight herd a few years ago, when a big game hunt was proposed to reduce the number of bison because of the lack of feed on the range. The hunt was prevented. The buffalo were scattered to new range throughout the country and Americans of today, as a result, can still view that majestic and superb animal.

Sues Goldenberg in Alleged Altercation

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Civil Judge Edmund Gausewitz took under advisement yesterday a $2,500 suit filed against Charles (Buckets) Goldenberg, Green Bay Packer football player and professional wrestler, by Francis X. McCormack, son of James L. McCormack, clerk of the circuit court.

The suit grew out of an argument between the two men after they collided on a sidewalk in the Milwaukee shopping district, June 24, 1936.

Mc McCormack told the court Goldenberg struck him in the face and chest forcefully and he has been troubled ever since with headaches and stomach upsets.

Goldenberg said he told McCormack to be on his way after giving him a slight push.

SYNOPSIS: A lovers' tiff parts returned. Neill waited for developments. Neill, a young federal agent, and Janet in Baltimore. She won't break a date with wealthy, flashy Prescott Fanning whom Neill distrusts. Next day a mysterious phone call tells Neill Janet is in trouble on Fanning's yacht at Abasco's Harbor. Rushing there, he finds in a locked cabin, Fanning shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neill dodge a watchman and find the best suite. Neill makes a rope ladder, then leaves Janet hidden on the ship and sets back to the village before dawn.

TWO CAMPERS ARRIVE
Neill, slept for an hour. His anxieties would not permit him to rest any longer, and he was up and sitting on the porch of the store next door before any other person in the village was stirring.

The Nady lay out in the harbor, clean-cut in the pure light of morning. White paint, mahogany and brass all spark and span. Nothing to suggest that a dead man lay aboard. Her dinghy was tied to a boom amidstships, so the crew must have returned. Neill waited for developments.

At 7 o'clock Virgil Longcope came down the little hill back of the store, whistling out of tune and swinging a big key. He was a leathery, middle-sized man wearing a wrinkled store suit of no particular color and a derby placed just so. The outfit made him stand out among the boots and jumpers of the other villagers. Virgil had a cracked voice, a bright eye and an expression of sly, good humor.

"Hello, stranger! You're up early."

"Well, I came down here to get a little sea air," said Neill, "and this is the best time of day to smell it."

"I reckon," said Virgil, "though I don't notice it myself no more. You ought to been here when the fertilizer factory across the harbor was working. Gemen! We had strong air then!"

Neill laughed to humor him. He thought: The killing is not yet known or he would speak of it.

Having opened up his store, Virgil sat down beside Neill and chewed his cigar.

The principal wharf of the place extended out in front of the store, and the whole panorama of village

Appleton Groups To Attend Mission Society Meetings

Sessions at Milwaukee, Clintonville, Head Calendar for Week

Women of two Protestant churches of Appleton will go out of town this week to missionary meetings. A delegation from Trinity English Lutheran church will leave early Wednesday morning to attend the sessions of the state convention of missionary societies of the Wisconsin conference of United Lutheran church in America Wednesday and Thursday at Epiphany church in Milwaukee. Mrs. D. E. Boserman is scheduled to lead the vespers service this evening which is a pre-convention event, and those who will leave Wednesday are Mrs. George E. Johnson, Mrs. Julius Homblette, Mrs. John Rademacher and Mrs. August Rademacher.

A district meeting of Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday at Clintonville will have as guest speaker Miss Nora Craven, missionary to Malaysia. Mrs. K. M. Bard, Mrs. J. R. Denys and Mrs. M. O. Fenton of First Methodist Episcopal church of Appleton have already signified their intention of attending, but they probably will be others from here.

First Methodist Episcopal church will hold the first of a series of mid-week services following a parish dinner Thursday evening at the church. Dr. Gilbert S. Cox, pastor, will speak at the service, his subject this week to be "The Coming Crisis in the Church." The Social Union circle captained by Mrs. Merle Bro and Mrs. Minnie Mills will serve the supper at 6:15. "A First Step in Christian Religion" was the subject of Dr. Sox's sermon Sunday morning at the church.

Conference Here
Today at First Congregational church interest is centered around the ministers and laymen's conference for about 30 Congregational churches in this area. Dr. Hugh Vernon White, Boston, author, lecturer and secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, is leading the ministers in their discussion on "The Church in the World," and Donald A. Adams, New Haven, Conn., past president of Rotary International, a former president of the New Haven Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the laymen's fellowship of the Congregational and Christian churches in the United States, will lead the laymen's conference beginning at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

The second of a series of mid-week worship services will be held Thursday night at First Congregational church with the Rev. Horace W. Parsons, assistant minister, preaching the sermon. The service will begin at 7:15. Last Sunday morning Dr. White gave the morning address at the church, his subject being Japan.

A church fellowship supper will be held at 6:30 Tuesday night at Emmanuel Evangelical church followed by a program of talks and music. John Trueman will be toastmaster and talks will be given by the Rev. W. C. Radtke, district superintendent of Appleton district, and the Rev. G. H. Blum, pastor of the church. Mrs. Nick Zylstra will have charge of music. Mr. Blum spoke last Sunday morning on "The New Man."

Dr. Wilson Returns
Dr. John W. Wilson, pastor-at-large of Congregational churches in Wisconsin, returned Saturday from a week's absence during which he attended the state Congregational conference at Whitewater early in the week. He spoke before Woman's Association of LaCrosse Thursday, and visited his son in St. Paul and friends in Lake Geneva Friday and Saturday. On Sunday Dr. Wilson preached at Sturgeon Bay.

F. Raywiser, Duluth, Minn., representative of the Northern Bible society, will speak at the Gospel temple Thursday night. There will be a mid-week devotional service at 7:30 Thursday night at First Baptist church. The Rev. R. H. Spang, pastor of the church, preached Sunday on "Learning from the Prophets."

"Salvation is of the Lord" was the sermon subject of the Rev. D. C. Jones who preached at John Evangelical and Reformed church last Sunday. A quarterly meeting of St. Matthew Lutheran congregation was held Monday night at the church.

Closing of Forty Hours devotion at St. Theresa church took place Sunday evening with the Rev. Basil Reese, O. F. M., in charge. The devotion began Friday morning.

"Are Sin, Disease and Death Real?" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following passage was taken from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: Matter and its effects—sin, sickness and death—are states of mortal mind which act, react, and then come to a stop. They are not facts of mind. They are not ideas, but illusions. But what say prevalent theories? They insist that life or God is one and the same with material life so-called. This false belief as to what really constitutes life so detracts from God's character and nature, that the true sense of this power is lost to all who cling to this falsity."

Superhighway Will Be Named 'Grignon' Through Two Towns

Kaukauna—The new Highway 41 through Kaukauna and Little Chute will have the name of Grignon, according to the committee, composed of Aldermen Otto Ludtke, G. S. Muholland and Jule Mertes, appointed at a recent council meeting to confer with Little Chute officials on the naming of the superhighway. Whether it will be Grignon street, road or drive has yet to be decided.

The committee was appointed when the traffic engineer of the Wisconsin Highway commission wrote and asked that an attempt be made to give the same name to the street in both Kaukauna and Little Chute.

The road enters the city of Kaukauna near the former Hyland farm and leaves the city near the Holy Cross cemetery, thus becoming a city street.

Bowlers Facing Heavy Schedule

Matches Scheduled in Three Pin Leagues At Kaukauna

Kaukauna—Starting tonight Kaukauna bowlers will swing into one of the busiest weeks of the season with matches scheduled in three leagues.

Tonight at 7 o'clock the Commercial league will start with Hopfensperger's Meats playing the Miller High Lifes and the Little Chute Bottling Works taking on the Melow Brews. At 9 o'clock the league-leading Gustman five will attempt to increase their first place margin against the Post Office quintet, with Gertz Taverners rolling against the Panty Lunch in the evening's final match.

Thursday night at 7 o'clock the Badgers will play the Ristaurants and the Luckies Strikes the Renna in the Ladies league with the Golden Stars and Titman-Schell matches at 9 o'clock completing the evening's schedule.

On Friday night the Masons will play the Moose five and the Kaukauna K. C.'s the Moloch in the Fraternal league's second start. The Elks will roll against the Hollandtown K. C.'s and Greenwoods will compete with the Foresters in the final matches.

Build Foundation for New Theater Building

Kaukauna—The excavation for the new theater, the Vaudette, being constructed in Kaukauna next to the Stokes grocery store on E. Second street, has been almost completed, and the front part of the foundation is being laid. The Hennes, Nimmer and Lemke construction company are in charge of the building.

The finished structure, its completion expected sometime in December, will be a 404 by 100 feet cement block building with a brick front, and have the latest modern theatrical improvements in heating and air conditioning, upholstery and stage equipment for traveling or local presentations, according to Van Dyke, who has been in business for the last 25 years as the Vaudette theater on Second street.

W. C. O. F. to Observe Fortieth Anniversary

Kaukauna—A program commemorating the 40th anniversary of the formation of St. Ann's Court No. 226, Women's Catholic Order of Foresters, will be presented on Wednesday, Oct. 20, it was announced today. The Court is one of Kaukauna's early organizations, being founded in 1897.

FUNERAL OF INFANT

Kaukauna—Funeral services for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Weigman, 428 W. 10th street, who died Sunday night, were held at 1:30 yesterday afternoon from St. Mary's Catholic church with Rev. A. Roder in charge. Burial was in the parish cemetery.

Survivors are the parents, and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Weigman, Kaukauna, and Mr. and Mrs. Martin Wydeven, Kimberly.

Kaukauna Eleven-Begins Drills for West DePere Tilt

Coach Little Points to Mistakes Made in St. Mary Contest

Kaukauna—After a brief talk in which Coach Paul E. Little explained the mistakes of the players in the St. Mary's game Saturday afternoon the squad ran through one of the longest workouts of the season in its first preparation for the game at West DePere Friday afternoon.

As the games will be played on Friday instead of Saturday, Little said, five days preparations will have to be crowded into four days, and similar sessions the rest of the week are in store. Two members of the squad did not participate in the practice, Captain Bill McCormick being out with stomach trouble and Bill Alger suffering from a stiff neck. Both are expected to be in shape for the West DePere game, however.

The squad received few compliments on their Saturday actions. The tackling and blocking, Little said, was terrible, and similar playing Friday will mean a rout in favor of DePere. Floyd Hooyman, right end, was spoken of by Little as playing the best game of his career.

The players then divided into first and second teams and after a half hour of running through plays scrimmaged against each other. All indications point to this program being followed the rest of the week.

Extinguish Blaze at Thilmany Sulphite Mill

Kaukauna—The Kaukauna fire department was called twice last night, at 1:45 and 4:20, to extinguish a fire in the carpentry shop at the Thilmany Sulphite mill. The first call lasted from 1:45 to 3:30, and due to a false ceiling under the roof where dense clouds of poisonous smoke accumulated, was hard to put out. The second call was disposed of with water buckets and chemicals.

Building Improvement Jobs Nearly Finished

Kaukauna—Work on the new front being built on Look's drug store, Second street, is almost finished. The construction, started several weeks ago, will give Look's the latest in show windows.

Work on the remodeling of the Central building is progressing rapidly, with floors and walls being given the final touches. Electrical connections are nearly completed, and first floor partitions finished.

Hagman Will Talk at Meeting of Teachers

Kaukauna—Teachers of the Kaukauna public schools will be entertained at a 6:30 dinner Thursday evening at Hotel Kaukauna. Walter P. Hagman, principal of the Outagamie Rural Normal school, will speak on his recent trip to Europe. The affair is being given by the board of education.

life unrolled before them—men on their way to work in the shipyard; professional fishermen chugging in from the bay with the night's catch and amateurs starting out with lunch baskets and tackle. No sign of movement aboard the yacht Nadji as yet. One of Virgil's first customers was a mild old man who drove up in a faded sedan.

"Morning, Captain Bickell!" sang Virgil. They went into the store together.

Neill remembered that this was the name of the caretaker of the big ships, and kept his eye on the door so that he would put himself in Captain Bickell's way when he came out. He wanted the information.

Meanwhile the lanky fisherman named Jake had taken a seat on Neill's bench.

"Mr. Longcope is quite a character," Neill said.

"Deed I doggone swear is he," said Jake. "He's a character, Virgil is. He loves a dicker. He'll take half a day to overreach you a dollar's worth, and hand you five. Every-body cusses Virgil out, but he gets their voice when he wants to run for anything. He owns pret' near ev'thing hereabouts, the best farms, the best timber, but he don't never grow rich because he's too soft-hearted. Come a hard winter when the river freezes and there's no oystering nor fishing, this village would starve if it wasn't for Virgil. He carries them all."

When Captain Bickell came out of the store, he found Neill standing beside his car.

"Morning, Captain. I saw your ships when I came down the road yesterday. Is a person allowed to go aboard?"

"You have to get a permit from the department of commerce, young man. I ain't authorized to let anybody aboard."

"Do you have many visitors?"

"No, sir. Them ships has been forgotten. Nobody asks to go aboard and the department ain't over-anxious to issue permits."

"Why is that?"

"We're afraid of fire. Don't want folks moseying around on board and dropping cigarette butts."

"I suppose they send down inspectors from time to time?"

"Sure, the first of every month."

"Two weeks' thought Neill. He said: "The cabins must be fixed up pretty fine."

"Sure. But we don't trouble the cabins. We keep 'em locked. Our job is to keep the hulls free of rust and the engines greased."

"How many men have you?"

"Four of us sleep aboard. Me, my foreman and a couple watchmen. I hire what painters and oilers I need by the day."

"Must be pretty lonely at night, just the four of you on those big ships."

"We sticks pretty close together." The old man smiled.

He drove back up the road.

Ketterings, Father and Son

Neill looked out at the Nadji. Still no sign of life aboard. The suspense was hard to bear. Virgil Longcope rejoined him.

A new gray sedan drove up. In it there were two men wearing fishing clothes, and the back compartment was heaped with a tent, folding cots and other camping implements. Of the two passengers, one was middle-aged, spare of frame, with lanky blonde hair over his forehead, a long nose and a hearty, voluble manner. The other was as different a type as could be—young, husky dark-skinned and silent—yet they were stamped as father and son.

The older man got out. "Good morning, gentlemen! Good morning! Which of you is the storekeeper?"

"Me," said Virgil, turning over his well-chewed cigar.

The other thrust out his hand "Delighted to meet you, Mr. Longcope. The name is Horace Kettering, lawyer of Baltimore. Yonder is my son Horace, junior."

Neill took sharp notice of the speaker. Strange that this man whom he had looked for in vain should turn up now! It was too late to ask him questions about Fanning, but as a friend of Janet's family, he might be of help.

"What can I do for you?" asked Virgil.

"Me and my son have come down for a few days' fishing," said Kettering. "We like to camp out, get close to nature and all that, you know, and I wanted to ask you if there was any place nearby where we could pitch our tent?"

"Sure. Just keep on around the harbor road, and on the other side of the point you will come to a little open field. The campers pitch there."

"Much obliged," said Kettering. "How's fishing?"

"Not bad," said Longcope. "No rock yet, but plenty of hard-head. And the trout are biting."

"Bait?"

"Oh, any God's amount of soft-crabs."

With discovery of the murder, tomorrow, excitement sweeps the village.

Prices Off 10 to 15 Cents In Spite of Moderate Supplies

New London Grid Squad Will Meet Shawano Saturday

Team Encouraged by Victory Over Menasha in Conference Game

New London — With the sweet homecoming victory over Menasha last Friday the last home game of the season, New London High school gridlers this week are preparing to continue their offensive drive on foreign ground when they invade Shawano Saturday afternoon for another Northwestern conference game.

While Shawano stands tied at the top of the loop with West De Pere, the Indians have not yet met any of the tougher teams, having defeated Kaukauna, Neenah and Clintonville, any of which the Slayersmen at full strength appear capable of beating. On the other hand, the green New London squad has only begun to play football as was indicated by their showing last week against Menasha, a team which was given the best odds for the conference championship at the beginning of the season.

With daily drills continuing at the city athletic park this week there seems little likelihood of a change in the lineup over Friday's squad. All played excellent football and none received disabling injuries. Probably the most serious accident occurred when Bernard Stern, back, had a gold tooth knocked from his mouth.

Hammerberg's tackling, blocking and smart playing on one end matched Mainardi's punting and end work on the other. Harold Knapstein, original regular, is still out of the game. Meshnick heaved the ball flawlessly from center when he took over against Kaukauna two weeks ago but he was off form against Menasha when he consistently passed the ball a bit low and several times put the receiver at a disadvantage.

In the backfield Phil Clark had a chance to show his running ability for the first time against Menasha and in all probability will do more in the game with Shawano. Hank McDaniel did some nice backfield work receiving passes and going through the line while Bernard Stern put in a good all-around performance, particularly racing for Poe's tocs.

As for Poepe, it's common knowledge among high school grid fans that like gives all he has in every game and with Menasha was no exception. He appeared particularly aggressive last Friday when he repeatedly took the ball with him as he jumped or dove over the scrimmage heap for short steady gains, often leaving an opposing lineman on the ground groggy from the smashing drive.

The object of Coaches Stacy and Charlesworth this week will be to get the squad in even finer shape and keep the boys in that do-or-die mental attitude so they'll bring home another victory this coming Saturday and keep this school from ending the season too close to the bottom.

Loerke Explains Papal Encyclical

175 Attend Knights of Columbus Celebration Of Landing Day

New London — About 175 persons were served when New London Knights of Columbus entertained at a Columbus Day banquet at the Catholic parish hall at 7 o'clock last evening. Dancing and cards continued the entertainment after the banquet.

The Rev. Lawrence Loerke of Black Creek as the principal speaker presented a paper explaining the recent papal encyclical of Pope Pious XI, "Rerum Novarum" or "Reconstruction of the Social Order," setting forth principles for capital and labor to combat the problems of the present day. The pastor commented that while there are no more new lands to discover as in the days of Columbus, much can be done by the individual for the betterment of mankind today by Christian cooperation and aggressiveness in the application of Christian principles to present day problems.

The Rev. H. J. Schmitt of Birnamwood was toastmaster and introduced, besides the speaker, R. M. Connelley, district deputy of the Knights of Columbus from Appleton who spoke briefly. Other priests at the speakers table were the Rev. William Wullinger, another former assistant pastor here who is now at Menasha; the Rev. P. J. Skell of Lebanon; the Rev. Paul E. Herb, local pastor; and the Rev. A. Baier, assistant pastor.

An invitation was extended to the New London council to attend the Columbus day celebration of the Appleton group at the Conway hotel, Appleton, Thursday evening.

The first group of the Senior Sodality served the banquet dinner.

Rotarians Hear Talk

By District Governor

New London — Walter P. Hagman, Kaukauna, district governor of Rotary, was guest speaker at a 6:20 dinner of the New London Rotary club at the Elwood hotel last evening.

The governor reported on the International convention at Nice, France, and told of his trip over seas and return, also of his excursion to Paris and other parts of Europe while at the convention.

The regular noon meeting of the club was held over until evening for the occasion. Plans for the annual Farmers' night were discussed. A date will be set soon for the event which may be held sometime in November.

Save Farm Buildings

When Hay Stack Ignites

New London — A fire alarm at 2:10 yesterday afternoon called the New London department to the farm of J. V. Moser east of the city to protect farm buildings from the flames of a blazing hay stack. Several loads had just been taken from the pile and the remaining hay was devoured by the flames. No cause was advanced for the blaze.

About 12:45 a call was received by the department from Dennis Hogan, Lebanon farmer, but the run was cancelled immediately afterward when firemen were informed the fire had been put out.

Fined $50. Costs for Operating Slot Machine

Waupaca — Frank Much, 48, of the town of Embarras was arrested Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Earl Polzin for operating a slot machine. Much pleaded guilty Monday morning before Justice S. W. Johnson and was fined $50 and costs of $12.95.
